The Second Volume of Lea's History.

of the Origin, Methods and Purposes of the Inquisition-Florian's Fables-Southern Call-

Another Installment of an Impartial Account " A History of the Inquisition in the Mid-Brothers. Mr. Lea has made an impression in the remarkable work on one of the most portentous dayslopments in Christian civilization, which it does not often fall to a writer of any age or country to make. The second volume, just issued, extends the investigation begun in the first into the workings of the enginery by which the Catholic Church was forced, the author contends, to hold its ground against the revolt of intellect from its sway. It was no doubt a case in which, however paradoxical it seems, "discipline must be maintained." Bad as the administration of the church was, worse was beyond in a state of ecclesinstical anarchy. For the power of the church was still the only one in Christendom that made for righteousness and the good of mankind, so long as the new power of knowledge was unequal to the battle with feudal brutality. Knowledge and thought indeed must fight its first battle with the church, then man's only protector, though a corrupt one, against otherwise irresponsible, unjust brute force. It is Mr. Loa's insight here which makes his book so philosophical and fair as a view of the times of which he writes. The present volume vividly tetalls the fluctua ting battle at first between church authority and assumption, with its merciless metheds, on the one band, and awakening intelligence and reasoning virtue on the other in devoted Languedoc. The most emphatic and the saddest sign at once of the church's and the Inquisition's final victory there was the conversion of Count Raymond, of Toulouse, from a champion of free thought and independent action into a tool of unrelenting persecution.' But the spirit of heresy, in all ages the spirit of freedom, was as undying as that of persecution, and Philip was appealed to at Paris. The appeal gave him new power as King of France, but that power proved, like Raymond's, anequal to more than a pretended reform of itguisition methods. Confiscation of goods was by this time added to the thurch's war on the person, and with this new weapon all France was attacked. The auto de fe advanced to Paris early in the Fourteenth Century, and even royal St. Louis delivered his subjects over to the cruelties which his blehops opposed. This seems to have been the culmination of inquisitorial power in this direction, however. The latitude was becoming too Northern for 115 growth. The French parliaments made bead against it and an attempt to revive it, against the influence of the University of Paris, in the next century falled, and was avenged in fresh persecution of the devoted Waldenses of the more Southern provinces, until Louis XL had become strong enough for even their protection to some extent In the Spanish peninsula the course of things was equally varied. Aragon yielded to the power of Rome in harassing its population, while Castile kept the Inquisition out altogether under Alonzo the Wise, though many of the Waldensian sect of the Cathari found refuge there for the free enjoyment of their opinious. Persecution for heresy was unknown in Castile and but inefficiently practiced even in Portugal. In Italy too there was sufficient political activity to favor heresy for a while, and even after persecution was set up there the popular apposition to it, and indifference to the church which engineered it, constituted a reserve force which always stood roady to justify the State in at last getting control of the Inquisition, as in Venice, the Siciles and finally Central Italy. To the east of the Adriatic its success was alixe precarious. The Cathari followed up its bloody career in Hungary with steady opposition, until Catharism became the State religion there and even reached a hand to Turkish investon, in its desperate mood of fighting the devil of persecution with tire. Into Germany also did Waldenslanism extend its operations, under the earlier tolerance of Conrad of Marburg, and with the favoring circumstance of his death after he had yielded to the urgency of Gregory XI for persecution. The bishops, too, were opposed to this urgoucy, as in France, and a reaction tept the Inquisition out of Germany. 'The author's account of the whole extensive fraternity of nonconformists of this period, under their various names, is very full. The Black Death of the Fourteenth Century is also described, from which even Germany is estimated to have lost one-fourth of its population. This seems to have decided Charles IV. on obeying the Pope and beginning persecution in Germany. But the prelates still protected some of the most troublesome of the recusants, and in the sud the Inquisition found Gormany no more suited to its permanent growth than other solls. When Luther rose it was powerless to harm him. Bohemia was always known for its independence in occlesiastical matters and early gave entertainment to Waldenslanism. The trial of Huss, as given by the author, affords a good Illustration of the inquisitorial process, and the exasperating effect of his burning is noted. A series of bloody crusades against the Hussites, in which all Europe was levied upon for warriors, who were indiscriminately guaranteed salvation for aiding in the extermination of the heretics, ended, after ten years of flondish cruelties od both sides. only in a sort of compact between the church and horesy; and whom itome afterward sent a grand inquisitor to try another crusade, in spite of the compact, he found more serious | work in making head against the Turks, fresh from the capture of Constantinople. The compact was maintained, and Bohemia enjoyed more or less of her old independence of Rome. If the reader be disposed to ask why the church did not reform itself instead of fighting the fanatical reformers, he finds agower here that corruption had been so thorough in "mining all within" it that no power was left for self cure. Instead of fighting the-sin of its priesthood It made war on Saracons in Asia and on the most cultivated and civilized of its European children, the Southern French, who, but for a century or two of massacre and confiscation, would have anticipated Italy in that great revival of learning which was begun by the Italian Renalesance. In thus rulning thriving and intelligent communities and municipalities the church gave a power to kings and emperors which it could not again take away, and became the mere diplomatic temporal sovereignty which it now is. And yet the church had the cunning to prosecute its temporal power, through all those dark and bloody times, even by such monstrous devices as making a political use of the very heresy it pretended to fight with such holy zeal. It sided often with heretical princes against those who would have favored the Inquisition, if a temporary advantage was thus to be gained. Even inquisitgrial zoalots sometimes became obnoxious by their fanaticism to the supreme authority, and tasted the horrors of the stake in their turn. Mr. Lea may seem to strain his admirable impartiality in not condemning the Coun-ell of Constance for violating the safe conduct granted to Huss in appearing before it. It was within ecclesiastical law at that time perhaps. A heretic had no rights, and any man sufficiently accused was a heretic. But if Mr. Lea absolves the council he does not spare the system under which it acted. It would gladly have saved

Huss' life at the expense of his retraction of what he hopestly held. It made him the martyr it feared he would be, and his followers for years made their country hot for the hordes of crusaders sent against them. But the decisions of councils did worse than this. They confused all moral principles and standards

by their decrees, making consistency of belief or obedience an impossibility. As to the giving of the cup as well as the bread to the laity, for which the Bohemians stood, with the whole church for over a thousand years, the Inquisitor Capistrane owned that he would not argue it with them, because of their familiarity with the Scripture and church history arguments for the practice. He would only burn them. But no adequate idea of the excellence and absorbing interest of Mr. Les's work can be given by description or even by extracts. It is rich in rare historical reading. In addition to its philosophical and candid spirit, its style is straightforward, clear, vigorous, graphic and yet graceful. The prepara-

only of these masters but of truth itself and of a purity of mind that goes only with the highest truth, that it is always a service to the reading world to bring him out afresh and with the excellent appreciation and rendering of this selection and metrical translation. For though the preface modestly claims "no special value" for it, and despite some inaccuracies due to the restraints of verse, it is a flowing and spirited rendering of the simple hearted author's gay and serious meanings. The loyalty to dle Ages," by Henry Charles Lea, Harper & truth which characterized Florian was well shown in his resistance to the cynical influence in literaliterary and critical world, by the production of his | ture of his kineman and patron, Voltaire; in his fidelity, first to his military obligations, then to those of the profession of letters which he afterward chose, and finally to the order of nobility in which he was born and to the unfortunate royal family of the time, for which social and political loyalty he came near being be headed in the French Revolution. Like a recent sumptuous edition of Dumas' "Monte Cristo," which came out with the original illustrations charactoristic of the period, the present edition of these selected fables has the benefit of the old illustrations of Grandville, which are expressive of the character the author put into his various animal subjects and of the truths, ethical and practical jocore and grave, which he designed to impart Some of the more suggestive of the fables, provocative at once of mirth and of thought, are, "The inquisitive Cst," "The Fox as a Prescher," "Hercules in Heaven," "The Two Bald Heads," "The Foxes" Lawsuit," "The Viper and the Bloodsucker," "The Guilty Dog," "The Monkey with the Magic Lantern" and "Death's Choice of Prime Migister." The volume has fine thick paper and a handsome blading Notes.

The Agriculturist for February is very full of frontisplece, "Caught in a Montana Bilzzard," to the English draft horses whose huge proportions are represented in it. Late improvements relating to the farm are given in profusion.

The new magazine, the American Garden, New York, is devoted to that novelty in flowers, the iris; o orchids: to a description of the gardens of San Souch: tree planting and lawn making, and the first of a series of articles by Charles Barnard on The Home Lot," as a source of family income.

The Phrenelogical Journal for February, New York, has a sketch and portrait of Dinah Mulock Craik; a chapter on "Autographs:" sketches and portraits of President Carnot, Chief Justice Wait and Victorien Sardou: the servant girl question, treated in "A Guess at a Riddle of the Nineteenth Century," and matter relating to the American Institute of Phronology.

Babyhood for February, New York, has a compreheasive article on what should be done in the emergencies of childhood. "Contagion and Disinfection" is by Dr. Chapta and "Childrens' Heads" by Dr. Yale. There are also articles on "The Bardening Process," "Babies and Papas," "A Chinese Method of Baby Feeding," "Nursery Helps, Novelties and Problems," etc.

The Book Buyer, Charles Scribner's Sons, for February has a sketch of W. Hamilton Gibson by Horace E. Scudder, with portrait and examples of the artist's style; an article on Japanese book illustration, by Heromich Shuglo, with some exceedingly graphic specimens, which put our artists rather in the background for expression, and "On the Track of Ulysses" by H. W. Mable.

"How to Succeed as a Stenographer or Type writer," by Arthur M. Baker, Fowler & Wells Co., New York, sums up its directions in the pithy senence: "Persevere or don't attempt." It also gives the percentage of failures and a sketch of the difficulties of the study. Having thus warned off the faint hearted, it gives advice as to choice of a system and what to do to the best advantage with proficiency when acquired.

The Writer Literary Bureau, Boston, asserts that very little of the manuscript intrusted to it for negotiation is not saleable semewhere. Perhaps the bureau will yet make leans on that species of property. The Writer for February has articles on 'The Writer's Signature," "Shorthand in Journalsm," "Unity as a Vocation or an Avocation," "That Bugbear Plagiarism," "What Readers Want," "Editor and Contributor," etc. It also abounds in suggestions, answers to queries, etc.

The D. Lothrop Co., Boston, announces an histor ical series, "The Story of the States," illustrated by Bridgeman, "New York," "Ohlo" and "Louislana" will appear shortly, the latter by Maurice Thompson. Other authors are E. E. Hale, Jossie Fremont, Thomas N. Page, Almon Gunnison, Marlon Harland, Alexander Black and Charles M Skinner, who writes "Colorado." The latter four writers are Brooklynites. The aim of the series is to show graphically how the States have been built up.

"Lyrics of the Ideal and the Real," by Coates Kinuey, Robert Clarke & Co., Cincinnati, is a somewhat coatly investment of paper and ink for the recreation, apparently, of the author, whose name sione, with that of his book, occupies all that there is of a title page. The sentiment of the verses is rather real than ideal and more pessimistic than optimistic, but will find a response in a good many vaguely thinking mlads. With so little purpose in the rhymes the wonder is what was the purpose in printing them.

Ticknor & Co. announce "A Moonlight Boy " and Homoselle" la their paper series, by E. W. Howe and Mary F. Tiernan, respectively; the Mendelssohn-Moscheles letters, portions of which are appearing in Scribner's; John Boyle O'Reilly's papers on boxing and other exercises, including Irish games, ancient as well as modern, under the title The Ethics of Boxing and Manly Sport; " a novel by Mark Hopkins, son of the late president of Williams College, on life in Paris and Nice, with Rus sian and French elements in it, and "Harvard

"The Hereafter," by twenty-three religious teachers, D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, is a little volume of answers to the Boston Herald's Christmas quory'at to proof of a life to come. The answers are signed in fac simile by their several authors, among whon are James Freeman Clarke, Joseph Cook, Wayland Hoyt, Father Hecker, C. A. Bartol, Rabbi Schindler, Julian K. Smyth, Emory J. Haynes, Bishop Whipple, A. A. Miner, Samuel E. Herrick and other representatives of different churches.

The prize principle seems to be acquiring popuacity in literature. So respectable a house as that of D. Lothrop Co. employs it to elicit felicity in the expression of good thought in its publications. If that is purchasable it is all very well, and it is hard to tell what is not purchasable in this age, oven in the way of genius. Let genius then, if it wishes to compete, get the terms of competition and await the decision of such judges as Edward Everett Hale, Maurice Thompson and President James B. Angell, of Michigan University, upon its work.

Hall's Journal of Health for February considers the klasing habit, which is said to be going out of fashion, and the tobacco habit, which is not. In answer to the question is Romanism overwhelming us its increase is declared to be falling off, notwithstanding that, half our population has a Catholic ancestry. Some statistics give but 7,000,000 of Roman Catholics, instead of the 22,000,000 which there should have been, to hold their own. In thirty years the increase in their clergy was 5,100, while that of Presbyterians was 4,256, of Buptlets 11,428, and of Methodists, 15,480, or 44,815 for all Protestant denominations.

"Queen Money," by the author of "Margaret Kent," Ticknor & Co., is a story of New York soclety, in which the reader will get, beside mere flirtation, love enough for the strongest appetite in that way. There is the due mixture of the Knickerbocker element in it, and of the New York literary element. But, whether it is ancient Knickerbocker gentility or literary distinction or musical and mathetic enjoyment generally, all seems to depend, as usual in our cultivated American life, on stocks. Wall street is the real seat of government in the social republic here sketched, and people are millionaires or not as things turn down there.

"The Nun's Curse," by Mrs. J. H. Riddell, D. Appleton & Co. In this new Irish story the author of "Miss Gascoigne" has worked to very good advantage the apparently inexhaustible mine of romance which is furnished in the complications and vicissitudes of Ireland's social, political and ecclesiastical life. The curse indicated in the title seems outwardly to have been lifted at the close, in the apparent prosperity of the chief family concerned, but there is abundant material left for a sequel in the existence of a dissatisfied if not exactly disinherited elder son, who, having been intended for the priesthood, is quite competent to make the profession s source of continued trouble to his kindred.

"Memoirs of an Arabian Princess," by Emily Ructe, D. Appleton & Co., is an autobiography, translated from the German, in which it was originally written for the author's children, in the fear that she should not be spared to tell them the story of her life when they grew up. It gives a picture of the life of Arab princes and princesses like the author; their schooling, matchmaking, the position of woman in the East, the fasts and festivals, the Arab system of slavery, which the author is disposed to paint mildly, excepting the slave trade incident to it: the medical service of the country and other things of much interest. The author became by her marriage a German subject, but revisited her native country in recent years. Her story is a very entertaining one.

John B. Alden, New York, announces to appear early in the Spring "The Land of the Pueblos," by Miss Susan E. Wallace, wife of the author of " Ben Hur." General Wallace was Governor of New Mexico when the materials for the book were gathered. These include much that is curious in American antiquities and history, as well as interesting bits of Western life and scenery. The announcement is also made of "The Fables of Fiorian," a "superbly" illustrated edition, wanslated into English verse by General J. N. Phelps, late member of the Vermont Historical Society. This phenomenon of French wit and purity at once, this delighter of childhood and age, combining the fancy of Roussesu and St. Pierre with the morality of Fenelon, is promised in this edition an artistic and graphic rendering in text and illustration.

Outing for February is strong in the instantaneous photograph line, with its vigorous frontispiece by Remington, "The Frontler Scout," and its article on fencing, by Eugene Van Schaick, illustrated. 'The Cruise of the Rebie" is by Thomas Dean. "A Wallaby Drive in Australia," by Allen Irwin, tells of a kind of sport which is at least an improvement on the butchery of bares in England, in that there is some danger attending it, and that extermination is a necessary matter in Australia with some species of animals. "Some Few Facts and Fancies on Ice," by C. Bowyer Vaux, sims at that reduction to a science which skating must experience with everything else amusing in these days of literary treatment. The late General Murcy's fifth paper on Big Game Hunting in the West" is spiced with langer as well as adventure. Mr. Stevens continues o follow the circummundane revolutions of his bicycle, astonishing the Celestials this month, Yollow Fever on Shipboard," by Captain Comn, s grimly picturesque. "Seining at Midnight" is by Charles E. Clay. Frank D. Sherman contributes "The Romance of a Dead Letter" and G. O. Shields ells wonders of buffale hunting in Texas.

"California of the South," by Walter Lindley, d. D., and J. P. Widney, A. M., M. D., D. Appleton & Co., is a very timely and interesting manual of a region rapidly becoming popular with health seekers of our own and other cities. Dr. Lindley will be remembered in Brooklyn in connection with its ampulance service. In the prevent volume he and his collaborator, Dr. Widney, give a good account of the physical geography, climate, resources, lines of travel and health resorts of Southern California, supplemented with maps and illustrations. The two Californias are described and the Pacific coast, is contrasted with the Atlantic in respect to seasons, rainfall, fogs and general humidity; amount of sunshine, prevailing winds and general temperature; agriculture, commercial development, harbor facilities, health and disease, education, types of We in city and country and political prospects. Los Angeles, San Diego, San Bornadino, Santa Barbara and Ventura countles receive special attention in both their past and their present. Orange and other fruit culture is also particularly treated of. The book is handsomely produced by the publishers. Some of the engravings of scenery and eccleslastical buildings are quite fine. With all the discount which every prudent prospector, looking for new worlds of health or material profit to conquer, is inclined to make, Southern California is a strong candidate for examination in these respects, and the present book affords abundant suggestion and help therefor.

Curling is very similar in principle to quoiting.

In the latter game the object in view is to toss the quoit to a point as near the "hub" as possible. In curling it is to slide the curling stone along the ice, on a pond or lake, as near as possible to the center of an arch called the "tee." The game of shuffle board-so familiar to Americans-is a fair Illustration in teiniature of the principle of curling. Singularly enough the Scotch game has not obtained a popular footing in England; probably because it is American ouriers, native and to the manor born, now being very numerous. In the North of Ireland, however, among the Scotch Irish of that section of the British Isles the game fluds the same favor as " at home." The laws of the game are promulgated by the Royal Curling Club of Great Britain, and they are adopted by all the clubs on both sides of the Atlantic which are affiliated with the parent organization. The most attractive feature of the sport is the tacility it offers for skillful, strategic play. It is full of scientific points from beginning to end,

and a player who aims to excel as a "keen curler"

must be capable of considerable headwork in handling the stones on the ice. The gurling clubs of the United States are governed by the National Curling

Association of this country, which, at its annual conventions, arranges the leading contests of the Supposing the rink to be in readiness for beginning a match, the players and their respective captains-called "skips"-chosen, and the order of each player appointed. Rink Aswe will say, having won the tess, begins the match by sending their first player to "cast the first stone." The "skip" having previously taken his position at the back of the opposite circle of the rink-the term "rink" applies allke to the course and its lines laid out on the ice and to the eight players-he at once directs the first player to "draw to the tee"-that is, to slide the stone as near to the center of the circle as he can. This done, the first player of Ring B, of -the fron plate placed firmly on the ice for the

the opposite side, takes his stand on the "crampet"

curlers to obtain a firm foothold-and his "akin"

directs him to "strike" the previous player's stone out of the circle wherein it lies and to leave als own stone in its place. Falling to do this, player

No. 2, of Rink A, takes his turn, and he is directed to "draw for a guard"—that is, to slide his stone so that it will lie in front of the stone in the circle and prevent its being knocked out. The object of the opposing player who follows the second player is to remove the "guard," and so the game proceeds until all of the eight players of the two rinks have had their turn, and then the side having the most stones nearest the "tee" scores as many points as it has stones lying in the circle. Before a match of this kind is engaged in for the prize of a club medal, however, a "point match" is played by the members of the club themselves, and it is in these point matches that efficiency in all the strategic points of the game is attained. I now proceed to lescribe how these several points of play are

The special points of play in curling, which every player must become familiar with before he can take part in a club contest, are "drawing," "striking," "guarding," "Inwicking," "chap and lie," wick and curl in," "raising," "chipping the winner" and "outwicking." When a "point" match is to be played the rink has to be specially marked out for the purpose, with small circles of the diameter of the curling stones drawn out on the ice on separate lines within and without the circle of which

The first "point" played in a regular rink match is "drawing to the tee;" but in a "point" match the first point played is that of "striking." To learn to strike the stone lying in the center of the circle and knock it out of the circle, therefore, is the first lesson in the art of curling. While doing this you have to strike out the inlying stone in such a manner as to leave your own stone within the circle and as

Learning to "strike" a stone out is the first letter of the curler's alphabet—that is, as far as learning

o control the direction of the stone is concerned

It is also a question of muscular strength, but command of the stone in delivery is the primary thing.

The next point played is that of "inwicking," and the object in view is to strike out two stones of the circle instead of one, as in "striking, and this is done somewhat similarly to making a carom on two balls in billiards; by this means your stone strikes out one stone lying nearest to you and to the right of the center of the circle and then it caroms on to the stone in the center, and knocking that out

Of course "inwicking" is a very skillful point to play and it requires not only thorough command of your stone in the right direction, but considerable practice in giving it the correct amount of force in impulsion. A fine inwick play will frequently change impending defeat into victory at the very

I now come to the very important point of "draw

The next point to be considered is that of "chap and lie," and this an incident of the opening point of "striking," as the object is to knock out he opposing stone and to leave your own stone lyng in the circle. There is a good deal of calculation of force and direction necessary in "chap and ile." as your stone only requires just sufficient force o send the opposing stone out of the circle, and not o much as to cause it to glance off and go out of he circle itself. Following this comes the point of "wick and curl n." This is simply a variation of the carom play National Sport-Celebrated in Verse-How hown in "inwicking," the point being to carom It is Played - Growing in Favor in Its from a stone lying outside and to the left of the circle to a position near the tee. To play this well The outdoor sports of Americans may now

The next point in order is that of "raising," and this is another variation of "striking," the object being to drive a guarding stone out of its position and to place your stone near where the other stood and to the right of it, so as to leave an open "port" for the stone on the 'tee' and thereby save your own stone for further cervice by a good draw to its I now come to one of the finest points of the game and that is "chilpping the winner," and to do this successfully the player needs to be a very skillful urler. The point in question is to pass the guarding stone in front of the stone near the "tee" which

Curling is a lost. It will be readily seen that quite a field for game worthy of the hardy inhabitants of the most trategic play is afforded in these several points of northerly portion of Great Britain, played as it is he name. Of course keen lee is required to play on the ice amid the bleak winds of Winter, and he game up to its highest point of excellence, and requiring as it does muscular strength, vigor of then this is at command and a clear, cold Winter's frame and considerable power of ondurance. The poets of Scotland have made the game a thome for day, without a blustering wind to mar the sport. It ould be difficult to find a more enjoyable or verse. The old Scotch song of "Hurra for Auld healthy pastime. The familiar broom feature of Winter!" bogius with a lively description of the he gaine, in which the curiers of a rink who have lready played their stones are engaged in aweepng the ice in front of a gliding stone, affords active xercise during a contest, aside from that of sliding the heavy stones along the ice. The curling matches f the Metropolitan district are played on the Conervatory Lake, on Seventy-sixth street, Central Park; the large lake in front of the Well House at > hester County, near Spuyton Duyvil. It is a matter of surprise that with so many Scotchmen resident of Brooklyn as we have and with such facilities for curling as the Prospect Park lake affords we have not more clubs here The Caledonian and Thistle clubs are the only urling organizations we have in this city, but there ught to be half a dozen clubs here at least. We should have a Brooklyn curling club, with plenty of young American players in it, the sons of resident cotchmen, as they have in the American Curling dlub in New York.

> > HIS ONE GREAT FAULT.

not "English, you know," but in America it is rapidly becoming one of our popular Winter sports, Telson's Love For the Wife of Sir Willlam Hamilton.

> When Nelson returned from the glorious ork of the Nile in 1798 he found Sir William Hamiton an old man, while Lady Hamilton was still in der prime, being in her 36th year. It may be presumed that most readers know the part Lady Hamton took in the transfer of the King, Queen and purt from Naples in the stormy events that folwed and also of the close association into which ne and Nelson were thrown as the result of these. then it was announced to their royalties of Naples hat the fleet of Toulon was doubtless bent on the onquest of Naples and Skilly, Earl St. Vincent buid also say that a "kaight of superior prowess" Nelson) was eager to protect their majestles, so hat personal gratitude, in addition to admiration heroic conduct shared by all the world, must ave entered largely into the feelings with which ady Hamilton now viewed Lord Nelson. One of he results of the close relationship late which Lord elson and Lady Hamilton were now thrown is nown to all the world as well as the open and scchowledged confession of it after the death of Sir Villiam Hamilton, the Merton House being purad avaragely that Lady Hamilton on elson's dauguter might together reside there. I ould be supererogatory on our part, even had we pace to go into detail of this period; we can only riefly advert to one or two points and set down a w reflections.

Of Nelson, himself-here, indomitable fighter, trepid and gallant sea dog though he was-it is not too much to say that the impression we derive rom this book is not altogether such as sets him digher in our regards as a man. Mr. Jeaffreson bors with no little spirit and ingonuity and we ad almost said dogged determination, to rebut any of the assertions of Souther, but not a little his energy and labor seems to us thrown away. uce, after all, he comes to much the same broad psults as Nelson's biographer in respect of characer. His acts only go to show how keen were outher's instincts on some radical points, though e went wrong on not a few minor details, not havng before him the documents which Mr. Jeaffreson ad been so fortunate to find and so effectively to t before the reading public. According to Mr. sffreson's dwn showing Nelson seduced the wife his friend while enjoying his full confidence and liendship. In the protection of that friend, the rowhile adventuress (who had seen such atranga sciety had been thrown into such doubtful postlone) had ever found a haven of respectability and ven diguified social influence, such as should have pelided her from a relapse like this; and this in r middle age and when the hey day of passion d passed, when, even Mr. Jeaffreson admits, she d lost some of her earlier charms. Mr. Jeaffreson fain to plead for Lord Nelson that he only fell nder momentary passion and strong temptation: at it is, to say the least, unfortunate for him that elson's relations to Lady Hamilton were lifetong ed that he died unreconciled to his wife in any sy. If Mr. Jeaffreson had only been as successl in his vindication of Nelson's conduct toward William Hamilton and Lady Nelson as he is in e matters of the Sicilian rebels and the execution Prince Caraciolio, we should have reloiced. But, tas! It is not so. The lives of Nelson and Lady Hamilton in relation Sir William were in the last years of his life nothbut a continuous lie. She bore a child to Nelson oratio) and this child was openly acknowledged by pleon and provided for in his last will and it became ecessity in their policy that duplicity and falsed should be practiced-which, indeed, it was to than extent and so successfully that Sir William sullton died under the belief that his wife was thful and Nelson even more his brother than friend. "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be sd." Sir William Hamilton's ignorance was doubtless bliss to him; but it would require a fine casuistry deed to justify such procedure as becoming an Epglish gentleman and officer, or likely to lead to any elevation of character in the man not only consenting to it, but practicing it and persistently pervering in it. Far more excuse is surely to be ound for Lady Hamilton, allowing Nelson to rest the fond belief that she had never given " a edge of love," as he calls it, to another, than for Lard Nelson and his paramour to let Sir William pass away without any confession of the wrongs of which he had been the victim at their hands. For though it is clear that Sir William had not been a procision in point of morals and the transfer of Emma from Mr. Greville's hands to his was a disgrace to both, yet, from all we can learn, Sir William had been devoted and faithful and in his own y strove to atone by many means for the wrong then done to her. That Nelson so implicitly believed in Lady Hamilton's faithfulness to Sir William and was ignorant of some important facts in life before her connection with Sir William, is all the worse for him, viewed from the very standpoint which Mr. Jeaffreson would fain hold. And should never be forgotten that the tone of morals among English gentlemen was not then quite so high as it is, professedly at least, nowadays, though the code of honor was more strict and could, in estain respects, be more directly upheld. Wellington, Nelson's great compeer, who was as averse as any man ever was from sentiment, in speaking of Nelson, once said that nothing was more contemptible and unmanly, or more likely to lower the character, than an acted lie of this very kind .-

Gentleman's Magazine. COST OF STRIKES.

Colonel Wright reports that the total loss American employes from strikes and lockouts during the last six years has been, in wages, nearly $80,000,000. The object of these strikes generally was the increase of wages. Success followed in 10, 97 cases, fallure in 8,910 cases. By lockouts 564 establishments, or 26 per cent of the whole, succoeded in gaining their point. This statement reveels the great odds which the strikes and lockouts have against them, and the serious nature of the too close to the "tee" stone an opportunity is given | contest in which they are engaged. -Boston Herald.

Indeed anyone may 'ook n valu for it on any map, or among the archives in the City Hall, yet, nevertheless, New Brooklyn, so called, is very well known. Some thirty years ago a German church was erected on Fulton street, near where Ralph avenue now crosses that point. Many Germans from Williamsburgh then settled n that vicinity. At that time smid woods and farmlands it had all the characteristics of a hamlet or small village, and the appellation was proper enough. Near by, on Atlantic avenue, between Utica and Troy avenues, was a cluster of houses inhabited by colored people. The place was called Weeksville. strikers in this country. The number of days lost by unsuccessful strikes was 5,081,315, and by successful ones 1,774,694. Bradstreet's observes that "In addition to the foregoing figures there were sixteen strikes which were not ended by December 31 last, and which account for 2,996,890 days lost, giving a grand total which is probably equal to fully 10,000,000 days lost by 350,000 men. This points to nearly one month's wages sacrificed per capits, age the average by strikers during 1887, or about 8% per cent of the annual wages lost by probably of e-tenth of the total number of industrial workers, that being about the proportion who went on strike. If $1.50 per day be taken as a low estimate of the problem le average earnings of those who went on strike during 1887, the loss of wages reckoned in money would amount to about $13,500,000, for both successful and unsuccessful strikers, as well as for those whose strikes were not ended December 31 last. This indicates that the successful strikes during 1887 involved a loss of £2,400,000 wages, the unsuccessful, of $6,800,000 wages and the unsettled strikes, December 31, of $4,300,000." These facts, it seems to us, answer the question as to whether the strikers are losers by striking. As to the other question, we cannot understand how, when business men are unable to fulfill their contracts, they can expect to retain the confidence of the market. If the country cannot meet the demands made upon it for goods it is very easy to understand that commerce will carry its demands elsewhere. There are certain and very obstinate laws of trade which never yield to strikes, and when they operate against a loss of 10,000,000 days; productive labor, the 350,000 men who have lost the time and their dependents must suffer. If not, we would like to know why not?

To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle:

We have had quite an interesting discussion on the height of waves in the ocean and the great power they exercise in various ways, and we have agreed to ask you to give us the best and latest nformation accessible on the subject. Purils. Answer-A year or two ago the EaglE answered a similar question. The encyclopedias furnish material on the subject which may be regarded as accurate as far as they go. The Edinburgh Scotsman recently had an article which seems to have been carefully prepared and is doubtless the latest contribution on the subject. It contains a volume of information which "Pupils" will find of value in their discussion. Here it is: It is a very common phrase to speak of the waves during a storm as running mountains high; but this really means nothing. Accurate measurements made by Scoreeby proved that during storms, waves in the Atlantic rarely exceed 43 feet from hollow to crest, the distance between the crests being 560 feet and their speed 32% miles as hour. More recent observations in the Atlantic give from 44 feet to 48 feet as the nightest measured waves; but such neights are rarely reached, and, indeed, waves exceeding 30 feet are very seldern encountered. The monsoon waves at Kurrachee break-water works were found to dash over the wall to tue depth of 18 feet or about 40 feet above mean sea level. The greatest heights of waves on the British coast were those observed in Wick Bay-so famous for the exceptionally heavy seas which roll into itpelug 37% to 40 feet. Green sens to the depth of 25 feet poured over the parapet of the breakwater at intervals of from seven to ten minutes, each wave. it was estimated, being a mass of 40,000 tons of water nd this continuously for three days and nignus. During severe atorms the waves used to rise high above the top of Smeaton's Eddystone tower, while at the Bell Rock the seas with easterly storms envelop the tower from base to balcony—a height of 400 feet. North Unst Lighthouse, in Shetland, is erected on an outlying rock, rising to a height of 200 feet and surrounded with deep water; yet the waves due to the mignty letch of the North Sea rush ip the nearly perpendicular face of the rock and on one occasion they burst open the door of the dwelling ouse, deluging the whole with water. Similar heavy waves, rising to great heights, are not un-familiar in the experience of keepers in the Scottish lighthouses. At Nosshead, in Calthness-shire, durng a beavy Lortheasterly gale, large bodies of water were thrown against the lauterus at an elevation of 175 feet above the sex. When Dhu Heartach Lighthique was in course of erection, during a Summer gale, fourteen stones, none of them less than 2 tons in weight, after being fixed if their pinces at the level of 37 feet above high water, were torn out of their piaces and swept off into deep water out of their places and swept off into deep water like leaves out of a book—this height corresponding with the glass panes in Winstautey's Eddystone Lighthouse. The force exerted during storms by waves has been found to be 3 tons per square foot on the west coast of Scotland and 3% tons on the east. At Alderney break-water blocks of stone 9 tons in weight were lifted from the foreshore and hurled over the top of the wall a height of 5 feet. The term the foreshore of the wall, a height of 45 feet. The iron pile light house erected on the Bishop Rock was carried away by unbroken seas striking the dwelling, the flowhich was 85 feet above high water. A tower of granite was subsequently erected on the Bishop and in 1860 the waves carried away the fog bell, weigh-ing 300 weight, at an elevation of 100 feet above the sea. In the Shetland Islands blocks of stone have been quarried at the height of 70 to 75 feet above the mean sea level. But these instances of the action of the waves during storms sink into insignificance when it is mentioned that blocks of concrete, weighing 1,350 and 2,600 respectively, were carried away by the repeated assaults of the wild rollers of Wick Bay. The depth to which wave action extends has been differently estimated, but it varies from 70 feet to 150 feet, as shell fish which are known only to live at these depths are thrown upon the shore during heavy gales, and it has been ascer sined that shings is moved in a depth of 50 barbor works are concerned, it is found that there is little movement of materials under 13 feet to 20 feet below low water, the foundations of breakwaters hitherto constructed not having been disturbed below these levels.

THE CAGOTS.

A Race Who Live in the Pyrences and the Old Aquitanian Regions.

Under the name of Cagots there live in the Pyrences and the old Aquitanian regions both sides of them-in the Spanish Upper and the French Lower Navarre, in Bearn, Gascony, Gulenne and Lower Poitou-a peculiar race who have been much talked about and attracted the attention of the peoples about them from very ancient times. Formerly the Cagots (whose name linguists derive from canis Gothicus, Gothic dog) were confounded with Cretins. The association was a mistaken one for the Cagots, with their large, muscular form, shapely skull, prominent nose, strongly marked features, blue eyes and smooth, blonde hair, are decidedly differout from that weak minded, deformed and goitrous class; and their physical appearance, in fact, goes to sustain the etymology of tholfname that we have mentioned, and to indicate a possible derivation from the Aryan Goths. The type of which we speak also corresponds fully with the race relatives of the Cagots living outside of the Pyrences, who are variously called, according to the place, Caheta, Caquedr, Caquins, Cocoas, Collibrets, etc., and are spread to Lower Poltou, in Brittany and Marne, and far down into Spain.

The race of the Cagots was for hundreds of years superstitiously avoided by the other inhabitants of the country, despised, persecuted, repelled, treated as if abandoned and outcast and restricted in all legal and social rights. Dark superstition and the prejudice of earlier times attributed to them a constant leprosy; they were supposed to have a peculiar repulsive exhatation, to be destitute of earlaps, to be color blind, to see in the night like cats and owls and were accused of pretended, likewise disgraceful offenses. They were treated as feeble beings, afflicted with contagious disease and moral impurities, who should not be touched and with whom as little business intercourse should be had as possible. Down to the Seventeenth Century they were thus treated. If they lived in the towns they were confined to a particular quarter in which the other citizens rarely came; if they came out of their quarter they were obliged to wear a piece of red cloth on some conspicuous part of their dress, so that others might recognize them and keep away from them.-Popular Science Monthly.

Nineteenth street; George M. L. Bochm, willing workers, has been organized, and Dean street.

Men of experience in the association have been working on the details. The 30, 1909, SARA E. CROUCHLEY, 5!ster of plan was explained at a dinner given by the committee of management in the lecture room on Thursday evening last, when the "Ten Thousand Dollar Club" was tive committee and sixty workers. These sixty men were organized into six teams. Spent a Month in British Guiana consisting of a captain, three lieutenants and six workers. The executive committee undertakes to raise $4,000 during the ten days, and each of the six teams will endeavor to raise $1,000. This makes it necessary for every man on each team to raise $10 a day for ten days,

The six captains will direct the eighteen lieutenants, who in turn will supervise the thirty-six workers, each group reporting to their superiors at the end of every working day. During the ten days campaign, from February 1 to 11, an im-mense bulletin will be displayed in the association building, which will indicate the daily progress of the club. This builletin will be changed every night at 10 o'clock and will show how much each team has secured up to that hour ...

The greatest enthusiasm was maniested at the dinner when the plan was money explained. Howard McWilliams, consul, Arthur G. Chre. the braticit chateman presided. Experience of George Wellington Gibbs of This Borough.

Prison Because He Was Mistaken for Another Man.

George Wellington Gibbs, the young Brooklyn man, who claims to have been locked up in a prison at Georgicown, British Guiana, for nearly a month, on false charges, told his story to an Eagle reporter this morning. He arrived on the steamship Korona, yesterday afternoon, and went at once to his home at 293 Manhattan avenue.

"I was mistaken for some one else, by the authorities at Georgetown," said young Gibbs, "in spite of the fact that showed them my passport and that all my luggage was marked with my name. DRY DOCK 3, NAVY YARD, FOR LINER ST. LOUIS

She Was a War Ship, Once and Was Commanded by Caspar F. Goodrich.

The American line steamer St. Louis which arrived in port yesterday afternoon two days late because of a broken rudder, will be docked in the big wooden dry dock of the Brooklyn Navy Yard on Thursday of this week. This morning Naval Constructor W. J. Atlantic passenger cervice in the fall of 1898, and continued uninterruptedly until January, 1903, when she was sent abroad to be extensively repaired, after one of the longest trips across the Atlantic she has ever experienced. She was sent to Newport News to have her machinery overhauled and resumed her regular trips in August of the same year. About a year later she again got into trouble and was sent to Ireland for repairs. This caused a great deal of criticism, and upon her return to this country, in December of 1904, an effort was made to make the American Line pay duty for the repairs offected abroad.

The St. Paul, a sister ship of the St Louis, docked in the local navy yard in winter of 1900, after she had met with an accident at sea, in which she lost her starboard propeller and portion of the propeller shaft,'

Coroner Ambler Investigates Death of Lydia Salg.

Doctor Finds Poison in Stomach. Confectionery at Manhattan Playhouse Confiscated.

Coroner Ambler of Queens County today began an investigation of the death last Saturday, of Lydia Saig, 16 years old. of 61 Poplar street, Corona. The girl is supposed to have eaten poisoned candy. An autopsy was performed by Dr. Walter G. Frey, coroner's physician, assisted by Dr. Wickham, family physiclan. A report of the result was made to Coroner Ambler yesterday and he at once ordered a thorough investigation.

According to his report, Dr. Frey found evidences of polson in the girl's stomach and intestines. The exact nature of the poison could not be determined until a chemical analysis is made, the doctor said. When the girl's mother was questioned she said she was called by her daughter, early Saturday morning and day afternoon as the time for the hearfound blood marks on the child's pillow, ing. the blood having come from her mouth. Lydia said she was deathly sick and Mrs. Salg and Lydia's sister assisted her into the bath room. They had hardly reached there when she felf over dead.

Mrs. Saig told the coroner's physician, that the evening before she, Lydia and her son had attended a play in a theater In Manhattan. After the performance insane on the old Creedmoor rifle range they bought a package of candy at the grounds. The Brooklyn men told Govtheater. The candy was of a standard manufacture. Lydia had eaten more than the others. Soon after Lydia died Mrs. Salg and her son also became ill. Coroner Ambler has directed that all the candy similar to that eaten by the girl at the Manhattan play house, be confiscated and he has directed that an analysis of the contents of the dead girl's stomach be made. Dr. Frey says the autopsy showed the girl was perfectly healthy and would not have died but oppose the Creedmoor site. It was said, and Cotton exchanges, president of the

FINE FOR SCOOTERISTS. (Special to the Eagle.)

Patchogue, L. I., February 2-The Great South Bay is frozen over from shore to shore, a distance of five miles across from the mainland to the beach, and several miles in length. The prospects of scootering now appear fine: Maurice Baker of the Blue Point Life Saving crew was the first one to cross the bay on a scooter, coming across to the mainland this morning, reaching here about condition and that by Wednesday will be in good shape for scooter sailing. It is hoped to have a scooter race off Patchogue by Saturday.

IN ANSWER TO CHARGES

Senate Insurance Committee to Listen to His Denial

WRITES A LETTER TO GRATTAN

on Tuesday.

"Near Superintendent of Insurance" Says Charges Besmirch His Good Name.

(Special to the Eagle.) Albany, February 2-Frederick A. Wallls, the "near superintendent of insurance," as he is termed at the capital, has written a letter to Chairman Grattan of the Senate insurance committee, asking an opportunity to appear before the committee to make answer to the charges which caused his fallure to take office. Mr. Wallis in the brief time since Governor Hughes sent his nomination to the Senate has been perhaps the most talked of man in Albany. He arrived here late last night and was at the Ten Eyck Ho tel to-day.

He refused flatly to discuss any phase of the controversy regarding him, but admitted that he intended to vindicate his reputation and asserted that he would never be satisfied until he had proved that there was no foundation in fact for any of the stories reflecting on his integrity as an insurance man.

The only part of the Wallis letter which Grattan would give out was a part of a single sentence, which said that Wallis wished to answer and explain "all correspondence alleged to contain reflec- ceived his education in the public school But as Wealthy Promoters of Pro epportunity he asked, and set next Tues- the office of Dr. John Wayland of Lan-

At all events, it was said with some degree of conviction to-day that Senator Raines had decided not to urge the passage of the bill he introduced which would authorize the sale of Creedmoor to private-individuals and the purchase of a new site. It is now regarded as settled that the insane hospital will be built at Creedmoor.

THE SHORT LINE OF TRAVEL.

The shortest railroad line from New York to St. Louis is through Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Columbus and Indianapolis.

It is the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, over which runs the fastest train between Manhattan and the Mississippi River, the "St. Louis Limited." It makes the trip of ten hundred and fifty-four miles in twenty-seven hours and thirty-five minutes every day in the year.

This train has all the special features of the highest class of modern "limiteds"-parlor-smoking, sleeping, dining, and compartmenf-observation cars, stenographers, ladies' maids, stock quotations, barbers, bathrooms, electric lights, daily newspapers, and periodicals-but there is no extra fare to any point west of Pittsburgh.

The "St. Louis Limited" leaves Brooklyn at 1.45 P. M. daily, and arrives St. Louis 4.30 o'clock the next afternoon, and this schedule it maintains with unexampled regularity.

There are other fast through trains to the Southwest over this natural short line, including through service to Cincinnati, Louisville, and Nashville.

Activity in Brooklyn Crafts.

Carpentry, house altering, installing of mantelpieces and equipping with electrical circuits are but few of the many minor crafts which fill so many wants of the average household. While carpentry is one of the earliest of all the crafts, to-day people are even more dependent upon the members of this trade than they were in the earlier days, when every man was apt to be his own carpenter.

As a result of the separation of the craft into one in which it takes years of training to bring perfection, there have developed all sorts of carpenters, good, bad and indifferent. In the large cities, carpenters of the better class are apt to congregate, where the big work of building is going on. Brooklyn, no less than her sister boroughs, has felt the impetus of modern building, and has within her boundaries numbers of members of the craft who rank with the highest, and there is great activity and competition as a result. More recent in its inception is the trade of electrical construction; yet now it ranks next to some of the older businesses, and it is safe to say that no trade requires more careful training than, or will so surely betray incompetence as, that of the electrical worker. Brooklyn. through its progressive shops, is well furnished with electrical supply houses. Filling a branch of activity between necessity and luxury, the firms which install tile floors, mantelpieces and fire places are important in the work they perform in this borough. That the business has become separate from that of general household furnishing is an eviits importance. Tilings for kitchens, bathrooms, vestibules and hall ways are part of the initial equipment of every well-founded house to-day. In firm. addition, stores of this nature usually floor consists largely deal in gas ranges, gas heaters, gas of grates, gas logs and andirons. Every department of house furnishing may easily be supplied among Brooklyn's various professions and trades advertised in the Eagle's Progressive Shop pages.

Couch was brought before Toastmaster De Young, who immediately began to berate him before the large gathering, about the lateness of the dinner. He gave him a severe scoring, which the proprietor bore in good faith. Finally, the chairman said the Labor Union would not stand for his disregard of it, though Couch has done much to help it, and thereupon presented him with a gold watch.

> Dr. Melish was then introduced, and he remarked that a clerical union was just in his line and that organization for his profession was a good thing. He told of his dream of united labor, which, like the in its construction slow, but inevitable.

"America is a temple of God in the building," he said, "with its foundation in the home of the people, its walls the men, women and children who labor there, and above it all the men who fought for the country and the Light that shines above. NUT AND FRUIT DISHES.

Nuts and fruits are no longer merely accessories to our meals, but care often the principal features of the menu. And because of the important part they play there is now quite a varied and extensive collection of delicious and nourishing dishes which have these materials as foundations.

Chestnut Rolls With Fried Apples. Shell a quart of large chestnuts and peel off the inner skin by scaking them a few minutes in boiling water and then rubbing them with a coarse cloth. Cover with salted water and boll until soft enough to mash easily. Drain and turn them into a bowl and mash fine, season ing to taste with salt, pepper and a ta-blespoonful of butter. Mix thoroughly with a well beaten egg. Shape into small rolls, dip into egg and bread crumbs and ry a delicate brown. Cut tart, unpeeled apples into half inch sections and remove the cores. Sprinkle over them the juice of a lemon mixed with a tablespoonful of sugar. Let them stand in a cool place for an hour, then saute them tender, bu not too soft, in a little butter. Arrange as a garnish around the chestnut rolls. Nut Roll, Baked and Served With Apple Sauce.

Pour bolling water over two quarts and pint of English walnuts shelled, and as soon as the skin will peel rub it off with a rough cloth. Chop fine and dry a little in the oven, so that they may be crushed with the rolling pin. Have ready a pint of nicely boiled rice. Adhalf a cup of bread crumbs browned delicately in the oven, a teaspoonful chopped parsley, two hard bolled eggs cut into dice and salt and white pepper to suit the taste. Mix well, add the nut meats, and bind together with two well beaten eggs. Shape into a loaf by packing into a well buttered, small bread tin; cover the top with buttered paper and bake balf an hour. Serve with spiced apples or rich tart apple sauce.

Apples to Serve With Roast Pork of Goose. Pare and core the apples, as many as will be needed; put them in a porcelain lined or earthenware baking dish. Add a pint of chicken broth, or boiling water if you have no broth, and simmer for twenty minutes with a teaspoonful finely minced onion, small bay leaf, and salt and pepper to taste. Strain over the apples, cover closely and cook slowly until soft. Remove from the stock and set in a cool place. Then prepare the stuffing of two cupfuls of blanched and chopped black walnuts stewed ten minutes in the stock in which the apples were cooked. Place the apples in a glass dish, fill the hollows from which cores were removed with the prepared nuts; then stir in the rest of the stock, adding half a cup of current or quince jelly. Pour over the apples and serve

Date Omelet.

Beat three egg yolks until lemon colored; add three tablespoonfuls powdered sugar and juice of half a lemon. Fold in carefully the stiffly beaten whites of six eggs and, finally, twelve dates cut in quarters. Turn into a buttered pudding dish and bake in a hot oven until golden brown. Serve at once with orange sauce.

"FALLACIES IN EDUCATION."

By All First-Class Grocers,

Some of These Pointed Out by the Rev. Daniel Quin, S. J., of · Fordham University. "Fallacies in Education" was the toplo on which President Daniel Quin, S. J., of Fordham University, lectured in the auditorium of Brooklyn College last evening. Education to-day, he said, was in a process of evolution, almost of revoluunder side; then fold like an omlet and tion. The first fallacy to which he called attention was the elective system, by which a young man could choose to study what he pleased or what he most desired. While a partial elective system was all right, a general elective system was to be condemned and, in fact, its death knell had already been sounded. The results from the elective system were-by no means as effective as the old-fashioned method of rigid training. Electivism had run mad in proffering liberty for the professor, liberty for the pupil, intellectual liberty and moral liberty. The flabby nutriment of ple, cake and preserves would not build up strength like solid food, and the same was true in education. There must be general training before specialization, if full, rounded

Another fallacy was prolonging the course of kindergarten training beyond classes and even lato the college, on the principle that pupils must be amused and ble duties, of self-denial and to face the hard facts of life and to take living seriously if they were to be truly educated. Children would get intellectual dyspepsia by too prolonged a kindergarten system. Education without morality was another fallacy. The lack of instruction in mora literary methods, but without morality they were likely to become forgers or men and not lopsided men were to be sneak thieves. It was another fallacy to leach morality without religion. Paternalism in schools, which substituted the slate for God and the Board of Education for Christ led directly to socialism. To have the state play the stepfather and stepmother and pay for doctors and dentists and feed and clothe the children was to preach socialism all the time. Good teachers were not to be had for a price. but for zeal and love for the work. It it were a choice between good teachers and poor apparatus and poor teachers and good apparatus the former were to. be chosen all the time, for a good teacher

In conclusion the speaker deprecated the effort being made in this state to repursue a college course and a professional one together and secure both debach, principal of the school, which pre- grees in six years. The A. B., he said also reign." Dr. Hillis said: Culture and character are through suf-Yering. Life is God's university, happiness is the graduating point, but trouble and adversity are His chosen teachers. The world is built for joy, but man comes to his full estate only through the tutilage of sorrow. Even Christ who brings glad tidings of great joy, is exhibited as passing through the uttermost of pain upward toward the uttermost of pleasure and the world's throne. If man avashes his eves in tears, and makes his garments white with blood, he, too, is higher manhood. Suffering is an alchem-

Manhood is nature plus the temptations that chisel out character. That which let the crystal out of the geode is not the clear shining of the sun. Pastor Russell Says When a Man's Dead He's Dead and Prayers Won't Affect Him.

Pastor Russell-he does not believe in 'reverend" or "doctor"-talked in the Academy of Music, yesterday afternoon, on "Where Are the Dead?" This appears to be his pet sermon, for he has given it in Brooklyn before, and thousands have heard it in other cities. There was a large audience, filling every part of the large auditorium, and hundreds were turned away. Pastor Russell has attached two historical names to his regular Brooklyn Tabernacle.

The speaker took up the heathen beliefs, dissected the Catholic faith, spoke of purgatory, and then said: "I don't know but I'd as soon take the heathen view and be a mouse or an elephant and take my chances dodging around. I believe I'd rather take the agnostic's view and believe I am dead for all time when I die as to be troubled there is in Christ for ourselves, and to about purgatory. They threw it away bodily I can rejoice in and appropriate what because they could not tell where it was, and their Catholic friends could not tell

"The reason persons do not know more about what takes place after death is because they devote too much attention to money, real estate and politics. The theory that 'when a man dies he becomes' more alive than before he died' is absurd, and the Bible teaches the reverse. The He about death came first from the serpent in the Garden of Eden, who told Eve if she ate of the forbidden fruit she should not surely die. The lie was passed to Plato and by him on to Christendom.

"When a man's dead he's dead, and all the prayers on earth won't affect him,' declared the clergyman. "It is ridiculous, however, that millions of His people who never heard of Him will be sent to Hell by Him. There is not one word in the Bible about Hell. The words translated 'Hell,' 'Sheel' and 'Hodes,' mean the grave, as every well educated clergyman knows. The Apostle Paul never mentioned Hell or Purgatory. He says the incorrigible one shall be punished with everlasting destruction. Death entered the world through one man, Adam. Death is enough punishment for you and your friends, but not for your enemies."

Many in the church came to me afterward and said, "We had not so much as heard of such a thing before," so completely had the very phrase, the very terminology of this truth dropped out of our religious ing concerning this fundamental truth of grace. What is imputed rightcousness? Imputed righteousness is that waich looks to the Christ and appropriates all the matchless splendor and perfection of His person and claims it for the believer. Imputed righteousness is built up and established first of all upon the fact of the perfection of Christ. As I look upon Christ and see Him in the peerless beauty of His holiness, in the amazing and appalling brightness of His virtue, in the wealth and passion of His love, imputed righteousness leads me to claim that for myself and say, "All of the virtues and glory of His character are mine; verily mine own." So that I can wrap myself around with and clothe my soul in His virtue and reckon the virtue of Christ as my virtue, His love as my love,

I must bear my own burden, and I must wear the adornment of my own virtues. If I have not virtues in the wardrobe of my spiritual life I cannot refolce in virtues. How can it turn out that the virtues of Christ which are His can be worn by me? How can another man's veracity enable me to say, "I am truthful because he speaks truth"? How can the life and philanthropy of one man cause I have borrowed my philanthropy from my neighbor next door"? How can righteousness be imputed? Now, when I come to Christ, I come to the great throbbing heart whence streams the life blood of the church and I find the pulses of eternal life there; and then, when I come to the outermost relation of the mystle body. I find the weakest member, however numb and lifeless, alive by virtue of his union with the central throbbing heart of Christ. When I come into the orchard of God and find 'the weakest twig of the true Vine, I can impute the vitality of that central Vine to the weakest tendril of the farthermost extremity, because the vine and the branch are all of a piece. By faith I am united with Christ. He takes my shame, take His glory; He takes my weakness, take His strength. Therefore, let us rejoice in this fact this morning—the fact of the imputed ightsousness of God. Here is Christ, and He is part of yourself; here is His life. and it is yours. How am I to appropriate that? By appropriating it and by no other way. Simply by faith. Not by struggle. Struggle has its place, but not here. It begins with appropriation. What is faith? The opening of all the avenues of one's being toward God. That is faith, and that is how it comes about that the imputed righteousness of Christ becomes the imparted right coursess of Christ. I impute the righteousness of the vine to the uttermost extent of the vine, but I expect at the uttermost extremity to see the evidence in the lucious fruitage of the vine. I impute to myself the righteousness of Christ; and God expects in me the evidence, the righteousness of Christ manifesting itself in the fruition of saintly character.

Let us go out this morning with this joy in our hearts. Conscious of our imperfections and the vileness of our own nature, let us go out triumphant in the perfection of Christ. President Levi in his report made some pertinent remarks about legislators at Albany. He hit the mark hard and was warmly applauded when he said:

"There is at this time an extremely important, and to my mind, a far reaching question which should receive much attention from the civic bodies in Brooklyn, in point of fact from all the civic bodies in Greater New York. TRADE BOARD AT WORK FOR MANUAL H.S. GIRLS

South Brooklyn Organization Sharply Condemns Board of Superintendents' Order.

INJUSTICE TO RESIDENTS

Atlantic Avenue Subway Station to Be Made More Convenient for Brooklynites.

Resolutions condemning the taking away of over 200 girls from the Manual Training High School and sending them to far-away annexes were passed at last night's meeting of the South Brooklyn Board of Trade, which was held in the library auditorium. Sixth avenue and Ninth street. The members of this board who live in the immediate vicinity of Manual did a great deal towards having the school built on the Park proud of it. The resolutions were introduced by Frederick Bruckbauer, chairman of the local school board, who for both boys and girls, that it was equipped for this purpose at great expense, and that the taking away of the girls to provide for more boys would necessitate the complete rearrangement of the building at enormous expense. The resolutions state that only four years ago the building was expensively equipped for both boys and girls; that the board objects not only to the in convenience the change means to girls 'against the waste of public funds involved in changing about a new building to carry out a theory of the superinendents"; that the board calls attention to the fact that the equipment of the Manual Training High School is the most costly in the city, summing up to $258,000, a very considerable part of which, such as tiled kitchens, plumbing. etc., would be valueless if removed from the building, and would have to newly installed elsewhere; and that in this time of financial stringency the board furges the Board of Education and the Board of Estimate to withhold consent from an expenditure of $50,000 or

He added that no sufficient reason had vet been presented for the change. Several other persons spoke along the same lines and many said the city has no right to go to extra expense in fitting up annexes for the manual work of the girls when the city is in its "Stewart." The new officers will be inpresent financial condition.

of the Board of Superintendents:

For the first time in the history of any school in which boys and girls are about High School has a girl president of its General Organization-Miss Mollie Stewart. She was elected yesterday afternoon at a delicate age, but protests strongly by 660 to 455 for the next highest candidate, a boy. Her election is not so much a victory for woman suffrage as a protest against what is believed to be the determination of the Board of Superintendents. the separation and segregation of the sexes into two schools. Many of the boys stood by the girls in a spirit of chivalry-believing them to have been badly treated.

There never was an election in the school so full of interest as that of yesterday, 'It was something new to have a girl at the head of a ticket. The tellers were very late in making up the returns, partly because some classes have late periods and could not vote till 4 o'clock. That made no difference, however, with the boys and girls who had just passed through a hot election; they were willing to wait, and they did wait, filling the corridors and the office and the rooms on the first floor till nearly 6 o'clock, to learn who had been elected. The figures for president came in first, and when Dr. Larkins houted out the figures that made Mollie Steward president, the throngs of boys and girls went nearly wild. The girls clapped and called the name of their candidate, and the boys gathered in groups to give the school shout, ending with

But this music has been associated so long with singers like Sembrich and Caruso at one house and Tetrazzini or Melba at the other that it takes something more than a respectable performance of think this is 'Everybody Works but it to rouse enthusiasm. The fact is that Father.' It leads up to the impressive it to rouse enthusiasm. The fact is that said the school was originally intended It Was a Protest Against the Action this score of Verdi's is neither fish, flesh, fowl nor good red herring. "Camille." from which this libretto is condensed, is one of the most moving dramas ever written, and for that reason has been more widely acted than any play of its period except "Uncle Tom's equal in numbers, the Manual Training Cabin." If Verdi had been in his "Aida" period when "Camille" was young, if he had wedded the Dumas text to music as dramatic as that of his Egyptian opera, his "Travlata" might have gone on repeating the triumphs of the play for nobody knows how long. But whatever else "Traviata" is, it is not dramatic. Verdi incrusted the story with sparkling gems of florid music which require the utmost elegance and skill in their singing. As tunes, or as singing exercises for coloratura sopranos of the first rank. "Ah Fors elut," "Semper Libera" and the rest are excellent, and surely no one can object to "Un Di Felice"-especially when sung with the exquisite elegance which Bonct imparted to it last eveningto the gypsy chorus and ballet with its tinkling melody, or to the finale of the third act. But, unfortunately, those flowers of melody, like Gilbert's flowers that Yesterday morning, at the first-year bloom in the spring, "have nothing to assembly, for the first time in a G. O. do with the vase." They "tra la" very election, the candidates electioneered, prettily, to be sure, but they do not With the exception of Hendrickson, all help to tell the tragic or sentimental addressed the assembly, urging their re- story of "Camille" the least little bit When this old score was new the music of an opera was not expected to help tell the story; if it was pretty music | Wagner changed all that-for Verdi himself as well as for us who listen to himand Puccini, applying the Wagner idea hollow and dull. We forgive that when we get singers of the first rank like Sembrich, Tetrazzini or Melba in the old works, but those women could win encores from most au diences if they sang simply their vocalises in public. We have become so accustomed to "Traviata" as the war horse of world famous sopranos that when we hear it without such an interpreter the old acore tends toward boredom even if the performance be highly creditable to the artists engaged.

Therefore, although Bernice Di Pasquali-that is a good deal of a name for a sunny-faced Staten Island girl, by the way-is an excellent young singer with a fresh and well-trained voice and a pleasing personality, she is not yet able some such herculean feat is necessary if this opera is to arouse the sort of enthusiasm which we have had in Brook-lyn over "Figaro" or "Meistersinger." Mme. Di Pasquali sang the florid music with much grace and beauty of tone, except that her voice is a little light in its through these flourishes with the true enegance of the old school. Better than that, she sang with real feeling through the most genuine part of the opera, scene between Violetta and the father of Alfredo in the second act. For these good qualities the audience liked her. approved of her and were honestly and pleasantly surprised that a singer so little known, could do so much with a part n which every listener thinks of his favorite queen of song in the principal scenes. The work that she did and the impression she made were distinctly to Mme. Di Pasquall's credit, and when she comes to Brooklyn again she will not be allowed to walk upon the stage without a welcoming hand. But neither the personal success of the prima donna nor that of the two chief singers associated with her served to arouse the audience to the point where it was ready to cry out for more opera of the same sort. Signor Bonci, the Alfredo, is a tenor of the very first rank as an artist. sings with an elegance and distinction of style which put to shame the work of many tenors endowed with larger voices or of more impressive personality. The tenor solos last night and his ducts with Violetta were a source of joy to all lovers of beautiful singing. But the average auditor worships a big voice, and neither knows nor cares much about beauty of style, if only there be sound enough. Bonci's voice is not particularly large, although it carries beautifully, especially in soft passages. For this reason and another, for which the tenor was in no wise responsible, his Alfredo falled to rouse any very great warmth of appreciation. That drawback was the idiotic habit of hybrid costuming this opera which tends to kill any little life or reality which the aingers might be able to impart to the work. Obviously, any performance of "Camille" should be dreased either as a contemporary work, that is in the fashion of the year in which it is sung, or it should be dressed for 1850, with the women crinolines and the men with flowing collars and cravats. last night, with Violetta in dresses of today, the men and women about her in powdered wigs and the men in small where else. That style is particularly Lawrence Law School. trying to Signor Bonel, who is small and man was heard to best advantage in his Amato. Attention was called to their peculiar fitness for expression of the spirit of the Russian tolk song, which holds in it so much of the long, dark winter, the unrest and suffering of the people. The second movement, andantino, is carried along by a swinging boat song whose rhythm is ac centuated by the motion of the oars. The scherzo, in turn, with its opening peasants dance, its march of the soldiers, interrupted by the lurching into the accus of a drunken vagabond, was likened by Mr. Damrosch to one of the old Dutch paintings. The playing of the opening of the fourth movement-allegro confuoco brought a smile and Mr. Damrosch paused long enough to say, "Now, do not

The resolutions set forth the lack of adequate transit facilities in Brooklyn and the efforts made to get relief through the building of the Fourth avenue and Congy Island subway: refer to the "statement of Controller Herman A. Metz that the city of New York has a borrowing capacity of $48,000,000, but a small part of which is required for the completion of the first six sections," and call upon Controller Metz "to cease his obstructive tactics and to apply immediately for a modification of the Levy injunction instigated by himself, to the detriment of the borough's best interests." A resolution was also passed that the Allied Civic Bodies attend in a body the meeting of the Reform Club at Cooper Union on the night of March 18, and that they also attend in a body the hearing at Albany on the extension of the debt limit, which will probably be held on March 15 or 20.

The subway committee of the Allied Civic Bodies is composed of the following: Bird S. Coler, Michael H. Quinlan, Andrew J. M. Murphy, Terrence P. Bren-David Porter, Edward Stratton, jr. William E. GIRLS WIN FROM BOYS. -

Debated at Recreation Center Brownsville on the Influence of Newspapers.

Two boys were defeated by two girls in a debate which was held last night in boys' rooms, including the swimming the auditorium of Public School No. 66, Osborn street, near Sutter avenue, Brownsville. It wasn't the first time that girls had been victorious at this recreation center, over which Miss Minnie R. ter, and the boys who took part in the debate come from the Hebrew Institute near by. Each of the sides and its supporters-girls of the Center and boys of the Institute. The hall was well filled. When Miss Root rang the bell the hubbub of conversation ceased and all settled down to listen. She stated the subject, which was "Resolved, That newspapers do more to mold public opinion than all other agencies combined." Rose Rabinowitz and Miss Ada Rabinowitz of the Browning Circle of the Center had the affirmative. They are pupils of the Girls High School. Irving Levine clothes from the seventeenth century, is and Bernard Greenberg of the Young Americans of the Institute, took the negative side. They are students of St.

> At a meeting held last uight at the residence of Fred A. Reid, 581 St. Mark's avenue, the incorporation papers of the Waterways League of Greater New York and Long Island were signed and the League indorsed the reopening of Coney Island Creek from Sheepshead Bay to Gravesend Bay. Controller Metz attended the meeting and spoke in favor of the plan to get waterways for South Bay, deep enough for launches to go through. It was a very enthusiastic meeting, and plans were discussed for giving a big dinner some time in the future at the Academy of Music and inviting President Taft, Governor Hughes and about 500 yachtsmen to be present for the parpose of setting forth the urgent need of having proper waterways. W. L. D. Prentice of the Atlantic Island Creek. $17,789 VERDICT HITS SUPERVISORS NEED NOT ENNIS & STOPPANI FIRM REFUND SUMS PAID THEM

the Gates avenue court this morning on But Court May Disappoint Man Court of Appeals Decides Against Whom Brokers Sold Out on a Panic Day.

Smelters and American Ice Fell, but Charges Technically Illegal, Court Partiy Recovered Before Closing. Queer Law Points.

Ennis & Stoppani, stock brokers, with branch office at 23 Court street, Brooklyn, will have to pay $17,789 to Edward Roche, a wealthy contractor of Far Rockaway, unless Justice Carr sets aside the verdict which a jury in Flushing brought in under very unusual circumstances.

The verdict was decidedly in favor of Mr. Roche, but it was rendered subject to a motion to direct a verdict for Ennis & Stoppani. The case is now in a most peculiar and equivocal position. The verdict is rendered, the jury discharged, and yet the court is to receive and consider briefs on a motion asking that the jury be directed to find for the defendants, Ennis & Stoppani.

The case is an echo of the panic of May, 1901. Edward Roche, one of the customers of Ennis & Stoppani, had fore the panic, and about the same time had bought 100 shares of American Ice common at $7. This stock was being carried on margin by Ennis & Stoppani. 20 per cent, of the purchase price of the stock on the beginning of the panic day of May 9, 1901.

Ennis & Stoppeni realized early in the morning that it was to be a panicky day, and they called on their customers for broader margins. Mr. Roche was asked to put up an additional $5,000 and he gave that sum of money to the stock brokers about 10 o'clock in the morning. Evidently he went his way, thinking he was amply protected. According to Ennis & Stoppani, there was an arrangement by telephone at a certain place at any ime through the business day.

Late that afternoon, after the five hours of panic was over, Mr. Roche was surprised to learn that Ennis & Stoppani had sold out all his stock. He demanded to know why, and the stock brokers told him they had to sell it as the margin ward slump about 12 o'clock, and they had been unable to communicate with him. not sustainable at law. They told him they had sold his 1,900 shares of Smoltone at of more than $17,000. They said they had exhausted every means of reaching him attorney, John J. Roach, had told them differently, and it had simply happened that Edward Roche had given a written power of attorney to John J. Roach to be used in the matter of the stocks carried by Ennis & Stoppani.

Mr. Roche communicated with John J. Roach and learned that Roach had given an order to sell, but that it was not long before the close of the market at 3 showed that between 2 and 3 o'clock American Smelters common was selling at prices ranging along from 51% and 52 up to 53. Roche couldn't understand why his stock should have been thrown overassociation has invited every citizen of like it was commanding a price of 53. the Beach, whether a property owner or It was the same way with the Ice, which 3. o'clock.

The exchange records of morning sales could identify his stock. He found that 600 shares of American Ice had been sold as low as 20 just before 1 o'clock, but could not find the record of his stock as the stock brokers. One explanation was that sales were so voluminous they could not be recorded, as they were made during the panic.

The dispute as to the time of the sale raised an important question. If the stock was not sold until after 2 o'clock when Smelters was selling as high as 53 and Ice as high as 33%, then the margin of approximately 30 per cent., or $17,000, was more than sufficient to protect the stock and there was no valid reason for selling it.

The case hinged on the time of sale. Roche's best witness was John J. Roach, who, it was said, was an employe of Ennis & Stoppani, with a salary of $75 a week. Mr. Roach testified that he had acted upon the power of attorney given him by Mr. Roche, and had given Ennis & Stoppani the order to sell the stock. But he sold the selling order was not given until be- on some household ornament, some piece tween 2:30 and 3 o'clock-possibly after of jewelry or some article of clothing, at 2:45 in the afternoon.

The jury found that Mr. Roche was entitled to 11,000 on the Smeller stock, as representing the difference between 42; the price at which Benils & Stoppani sold out Roche, and 50, the price at which Smelter common was selling within the next thirty days. Plaintiff in Wallace vs. Jones et Als.

Jericho, L. I., March 20-The news received here last night, through the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, that the Court of Appeals had affirmed the decision of the lower courts in the case of George Wallace against three supervisors-William H. Jones of this town, Smith Cox of the town of Hempstead and Edwin C. Willets of North Hempstead-caused a general expression of satisfaction with the

The action was brought to recover for alleged illegal charges amounting to over $26,000 for mileage in traveling back and forth daily between the county seat and the supervisors' homes during regular sessions of the board, lasting two or three months, and during which sessions, according to the county law, they were entitled to pay for only one round trip; also for per diem charges for bought 1,000 shares of American Smelters meetings when nothing appeared on the common at the price of 60, not long be- records to show that such meetings had been held; also for per diem charges and traveling expenses of committee meetings, of which no authorization is mentioned in the minutes of the board.

Monfort and Fredrick ingram, counsel for the supervisors, the plaintins' claim was cut down o a little over $3,000. The judgment of the Court of Appeals sustains that of the Appellate Division, which decision confirmed without comment the opinion by Judge Garret J. Garretson, who tried the case in 1907. The plaintiff, Wallace, alleged in his complaint that the supervisors were aware that they were performing an il-legal act and acted collusively in audit-

The philanthropic holders of God's money will not close their eyes to such conditions, or their ears to such calls. Let me remind such that many doors open to white children in orphan asylums where one opens to s segro child. Many of the more attractive of white orphans of tender age-are sought by the heads of childless homes, and hundreds of others are taken in groups to distant places where intelligent agents have secured homes for adoption or ser vice in which they receive training and but these doors do not open for negro children.

In assuming the duties of president, inspiring leadership of the late Rev. S. NOW BROOKLYN TABERNACLE

Pastor Russell Changes Name of His Church-Plymouth Official Tells Why.

Pastor Russell has changed the name of his church at 17 Hicks street from Plymouth Bethel to Brooklyn Tabernacle. Asked for the reason for the change, yesterday afternoon, he said that he latter name was preferable. Tabernacle, according to Pastor Russell, means temporary place of worship, and, considered in the light of things eternal, this place is but a temporary place of orship, as compared with the everlasting larger building, as the present one is emple which awaits the faithful,

An official of Plymouth Church, who was asked the same question about the change of name of Pastor Russell's gathered in the lot to witness the cerd-Church, hesitated sometime before re- monies of breaking ground. "All Ha plying. He was asked if any pressure the Power of Jesus' Name" was sung, an had been brought to bear on Pastor Rus- Llewellyn Wray, chairman of the buildin sell to make him change the name.

But Plymouth Bethel is a well recognized institution. It is an organization from a platform erected on the lot. I with a legal existence, and has a fund of T. Horswill and the other officers, had $20,000 for its support. It is one of the places upon the platform, as had the four existing missions of Plymouth architect, Mr. Dodge, and the contractor, this, he changed the name of his institution. He was not aware, probably when he first took the name Plymouth Bethel that he was usling the name of another living institution.

Yesterday afternoon Pastor Russell spoke to an audience of about two hundred and fifty persons, most of them, so far as could be judged, members of the Millennial Dawn," or "Watch Tower sect, which has its stronghold in Allegheny. He took a fling at the Calviniats and the Methodists, and claimed that their creeds were days in eternal torment for unfortunate creatures. Pastor Russell is not a "shouter," but he talks and talks and talks, in a conversational monotone, without notes, and in a cambling sort of way. He uses what might be termed the Dillon was held without ball after arraignment in the Adams street police court on a complaint filed by Gussie Prober, the mother. The woman became hysterical in court when the accused policeman was brought in and was hed out weeping blitterly. Her grief enlisted the pity of the spectators. Dillon was represented by Lawyer Edward J. Reilly, who also defended Policeman Dawkins, recently convicted of burglary. Dillon's case was set down for a hearing on May 17. The fatality was the result of an effort, by Dillion to force Isaac Prober to close his grocery, green goods and delicatessen son. The Probers say they had in the past been very good to the patrolman on the post, and had supplied him gratultously with cake and duck eggs, but the Learey, who is between 50 and 60 years him more, his manner changed and there perigrinations around his posts. About a year ago there was brought up before the Board of Estimate, by the borough president, a scheme to make Pitkin avenue 130 fect wide from East New York avenue to Stone avenue. Between the former thoroughfare and Barrott street Pitkin avenue is 80 feet wide. No sooner did the plan become known than a builder rushed up a short row of four story brick tenements on the 80-foot line of Pitkin avenue. The buildlags stood directly in the path of the proposed widening, and would have had to be torn down if the original plan had a large award for the owner of the buildings.

The cost of razing this short row of brick buildings made the borough offis between San Francisco and Manila. At the time she secured her divorce, wo years ago, Mrs. Marie Russell, Pastor Russell's wife, was alowed alimony of $40 a month. Russell has removed to Brooklyn and has taken all his assets with him. Judge MacFarlane, in his opinion, says that Russell's answer to his wife's petition is at least in bad taste after the court had previously noted in the hearing to fix allmony. The sale of the Pitteburg property by the sheriff on a triffing judgment against Russell is referred to to show that it was disposed of in fraud of his wife's rights.

After reviewing the case the court stated that no question of contempt or ounishment is involved, and that the consideration of the court is in the enforcement of the decree. Reference is made to the transfer of all of Russell's property to the Watch Tower Bible Tract Sofer to buy up claims of the depositors, ciety, and the agreement of that society to pay Mrs. Russell $40 a month.

Judge MacFarlane declared that to refuse an attachment would allow any respondent to place his property in the hands of a friend and then defy the courts power. When Pastor Russell was interviewed in

The Controller Speaks Right Out. Controller Metz has spoken sharply and explicitly. His words the other night left no one in doubt as to what he has done or tried to do or stopped seeking to do, when he found it could not be done, nor was any doubt left in any minds as to whom and what he held responsible for any variation or cessation of his official efforts in

The Eagle commends the frankness of the Controller which puts some upon the defensive. and advises those other men to frank and explicit in their own behalf as the Controller is in his own. We have no doubt that Judge Gaynor must have been misunderstood by Mr. Metz, and will be able to show that he was. But Mr. Metz is entitled to a measure of credit in antagenizing the judge, whom few confront successfully and whom feebler folk refrain from confronting at all through fear of Mr. Gaynor's destructive ability for an agressive defense or a defensive aggressiveness. That; however, is only incidental.

The significance of Mr. Metz's address on Thursday night is to be found in his upright, downright and straight up and down consideration of the city debt question, of the Fourth Avenue Subway proposition and of the relation of the Public Service Commission to transit development generally. No reader should omit Mr. Metz's very direct allusions to these matters.

He does not hesitate to say: "The Bronx Park extension was a steal, though it was all legal." An "all legal steal" is a phrase that will not be forgotten. The Controller holds the weakness or the wickedness of existing laws to blame for the fact that awards of $3,000,000 were made for park lands worth less than one-third the amount "The law awards it and the court decrees it," and the Controller has to pay over amounts, under the commission system, which one might say exists for the further enrichment of the already over-enriched. Mr. Metz likeder the existing plan of classification imposed on the governwhich he is strenuously seeking to simplify. There are 500 petty officials purchasing goods for the city, to be delivered in 1,506 places, and there are just fifteen inspectors to see that the goods are right in qualare honest. Correctness is impossible under such conditions, and lucorrectness is the result, and quite possibly is the design, of just such deliberately created obstacles to accuracy and to honesty.

The Controller sets forth some of the fixed charges which are perennial. necessity annually increase. The city has a payroll of about $80,000,000. NEWS OF CATHOLIC CHURCHES

Church of the Holy Innocents to Hold a Big Lawn Party-St. Francis Commencement.

The next few days will be of special import to the college students at St. John's. The young men will assemble to-morrow morning for the high mass at the church of St. John the Baptist, Lewis and Willoughby avenues. Right Rev. Mgr. Edward W. McCarthy, rector of the Church of St. Augustine, will deliver the baccalaurate sermon. The calendar for the other days of the week, including Wednesday, is as follows:

Sunday, June 20-St. John the Baptist's Church, 11 A.M. Baccalaureate sermon by Right. Rev. Mgr. Edward McCarthy, LL.D., pastor of St. Augustine's Church. Monday, June 21-Field day at Hawthorne Field, Brooklyn avenue and Hawthorne street, at 2:30 P.M.

Tuesday, June 22-Memorial requiem mass for the deceased alumni, in St. John the Baptist's Church at 9 A.M. Distribution of field day prizes at 10 A.M. Business meeting of Alumni Association at the college at 8 P.M. Wednesday, June 23—Commencement exercises at 8 P.M., in the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Gardinal Gibbons wil preside, and the address to the students will be delivered by Professor Monaghan. The demand for tickets is unprecedented. Cardinal Gibbons will celebrate mass on Thursday morning at the Church of St. John the Baptist. The newly completed Church of St. Leonard of Port Maurice at Hamburg avenue and Jefferson street, will be dedicated to-morrow morning by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. George Kaupert, V. G. The ceremony will begin at 10:30, and will be very elaborate. The parish of St. Leonard, of which the Rev. George D. Sander is rector, is one of the largest in the country. comprising 15,000 persons, containing many societies which will take part in the ceremonies. The new church was begun about two years ago, and has cost $350,-000. Solemn high mass will be offered by the Right Rev. Mgr. George W. Munde-lein, charcellor of the diocese.

A convention of the provincials of North America of the Jesuit Order was held this week in New York City. The provincials of the New York-Maryland. the Missouri, Canadian, New Orleans, California-Rocky Mountain Mission, and the New Mexico-Colorado Mission attended the conference which lasted for several

The Forty Hours devotion will be held in the following churches of the Brooklyn diocese, commencing to-morrow: St. Lawrence's Church, Sayville; Church of the Holy Redeemer, Freeport; St. Martin's Church, Hancock street and Knickerbocker avenue, and Church of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary, Degraw and Hicks streets.

The Rev. Peter Quealey, rector of the Church of St. Agnes, Rockville Centre, sailed for Europe this week to be presout at the ordination of his brother in Waterford, Ireland.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Pederation of Catholic Societies in the diocese of Brooklyn will take place at St. Patrick's Hall, Tasffe place, near Myrtle avenue, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A tentative report will be made by the committee appointed to draft a letter to the bishops of the state on the question of securing state support for denominational schools. President Feeney will outline the plans for the coming national convention, which is to be held at Pittsburg in the month of August.

The fortieth anniversary of the ordination to the priesthood of the Rt. Rev. Mgr. McNamee, rector of St. Teresa's Church, will be marked on Thursday, June 24, with a quiet celebration by the parishloners and friends of the distinguished clergyman. Bishop McDonnell has been mindful of the event and has cabled from Rome the Papal blessing, which he obtained from the Holy Father for this anniversary. Mgr. McNamee is averse to any public ceremonies which concern him personally, and this celebration of his many years of devoted work has been arranged at the urgent request of his parishioners, and without his knowledge. He will celebrate mass in St. Teresa's Church in the morning, very quietly, and in the evening at 8 o'clock he will be tendered an informal reception in the lower church. The Papal blessing obtained by Bishop McDonnell carries with it a plenary indulgence for all who partake of holy communion in honor of the anniversary next Thursday.

The commencement exercises of St Francis College, on Butler street, will be held on Thursday evening, June 24. at the Majestic Theater. The Rt. Rev. P. J. McNamara, V.G., will preside and many prominent citizens and educators will be seated on the stage. The address to the graduates will be delivered by the Rt. Rev. Mgr. George W. Mundhelm, chancellor of the Brooklyn diocesc. The graduates of St. Leonard's Academy will hold their commencement at the same time at the Majestic, and it is expected that a large and brilliant audience will attend the affair.

The first lawn party in the new parish of the Holy Innocents, in Flatbush, will be held on the four nights beginning with Wednesday of next week. The lawn party will be held on the grounds surrounding the church at Beverley road and East Seventeenth street. Already, the Rev. William Costello, rector of the par-ish, has arranged for five hundred electric lights to illuminate the grounds, and this lawn party will be one of the most beautiful ever held in Brooklyn. The grounds of the church are extensive, and they lend themselves readily to decoration. The party is in the hands of a committee of some of the most promione of the most brilliant and attractive events of the early summer season. Saturday afternoon will be devoted to the children. The residents of Prospect Park South and the adjoining sections of Flatbush are looking forward to this fete as one of the best opportunities they have had to become better acquainted and to have a pleasant time.

The new stations of the Cross in Holy

John's College will be held on Saturday morning, June 26, at 9 o'clock, at 4he college, Lewis and Willoughby avenues. Four scholarships will be awarded. Graduates from the parochial and public schools are eligible for these scholarships, which offer a fine opportunity for yoys to earn their education at St. John's without cost .. The examinations of candidates for St. John's Seminary will be hold on Friday morning. July 2. RUSHING IN CUBAN SUGAR.

Every Effort Being Made to Get Ahead of the Tariff

Refiners and importers are rushing in Cuban sugar every day, so as to be ahead of the new tariff bill when it comes into operation. Among the latest arrivals are the following cargoes: Cedar grove, 26 -18,099 bags to the Federal refinery, and 10,500 to order; the Yoruba, 32,079 bags to the American Sugar Refining Company; the Valetta, 29,700 bags to Zaldo & Co.; the Paloma, 10,000 bags to the Federal refinery and 6,594 to order and the Vitalia, 9,391 bags to order.

To illustrate the energy with which merchandise is being rushed in to avoid the duties that may be levied on certain classes of goods, it is reported that the steamship Asia is racing across the Pacific Ocean with 1,000 tons of tea on board from China and Japan. So great is the hurry to get her cargo landed at San Francisco that she has been ordered not to stop at Honolulu, by which she will gain two days in point of time.

MR. BARNER'S RESIGNATION

Is It a Question of Orthodoxy That Brings It About?

Young People Want Pastor to Remain, While Others Criticise His Beliefs.

The Rev. A. S. Barner, who has been pastor of the Memorial Baptist Church, Eighth avenue and Sixteenth street, for the past three years, has tendered his resignation. Rumors of friction between the pastor and a few of the church members were circulated as a reason for Mr Barner's action.

At the conclusion of the prayer meeting last evening in the chapel George Fluhr, church clerk, was asked what action, if any, had been taken on the pastor's resignation, and he said:

"Mr. Barner has gone away for a few weeks. His health has not been good and he has worked very hard. He will not be here on Sunday, but the board has determined not to accept his resignation should he officially tender it."

When asked if the pastor's broadening and more liberal interpretation of the Bible was responsible for his desire to seek other fields of religious endeavor, one of the officials bitterly denounced the new wave of non-orthodoxy which is sweeping away old beliefs, and said: "We want no change; we desire no change in the interpretation of the Bible. This new idea is terrible. Look at that fellow Foster out in Chicago; he should be kicked right out of the church and at

'A group of young women discussing the pastor's action hoped he would come back "fight it out." There is evidence that Mr. Barner has worked hard to blace the affairs of the church in a prosperous condition, and, while the majority of the congregation is in sympathy with him, his efforts to conciliate the hostile faction were frustrated. Eight pastors have come and gone from the church since 1891.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as Section 1. Section eight hundred and twenty-four-a of the Greater New York charter, as re-enacted by chapter four hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and one, as added by chapter four hundred and fifty of the laws of nineteen hundred and seven, is hereby mended to read as follows:

amended to read as follows:

Sec. 824-a. The commissioner of docks, with approval of the commissioners of the sinking fund, is authorized in his discretion to acquire by purchase or condemnation. In the name and for the benefit of the corporation of the City of New York, any property now or formerly used in connection with any ferry or ferries (except such ferry or ferries as may be the property of a railroad corporation), situated in the borough of Brooklyn in said city, between the northerly line of South Sixth street extended westerly and the southerly line of South Ninth street extended westerly, and such additional property as may be required such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or approaches, and to equip, maintain and operate any such ferry or ferries. The comptroller shall from time to time when authorized by the board of estimate and apportionment on the recommenda-tion of the commissioners of the sinking fund, issue corporate stock of the City of New York. in such amounts as they may deem the public interests to demand for the purpose of raising the money necessary to carry out the provisions of this section; except that no corporate stock shall be issued to maintain and operate such ferries to be acquired by this act. Whatever moneys may be required to provide for any deficiency caused by the operation or maintenance of ferries to be acquired by this act shall be provided in the manner now preand operate city properties. If the said com-missioner of docks shall deem it proper and expedient that the said corporation should ac-quire right and title to and possession of any quire right and title to and possession of any property, now or formerly used in connection with any ferry or ferries, and situated in the borough of Brooklyn between the northerly line of South Sixth street extended westerly and the southerly line of South Ninth street extended westerly, and such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or approaches by condemnation instead of by approaches, by condemnation instead of by purchase, the said commissioner of docks may, with the approval of the commissioners of the sinking fund, direct the corporation counsel of said city to take legal proceedings to acquire the same for the city, and the said corpora-tion counsel shall take the same proceedings to acquire the same as are by law provided for the taking of private property in said city for public streets or places, and the provisions of law relating to the taking of private prop-erty for public streets or places in said city hereby made applicable, as far as may be cessary to the acquiring of said ferry or ferries, together with all the property belong-ing thereto, and such additional property as may be required for terminal facilities or ap-proaches. While there are hundreds of publications for those inside the churches, there is none for those outside The new paper will aim to present the claims of Christianity to all such, vividly and persuasively. The paper is the outgrowth of the wide evangelistic propaganda of the National Bible Institute in New York City, which is now represented October, with a weekly attendance of over 10,000 men.

The new evangelistic periodical will be low in price and will doubtless strongly appeal to all pastors and Christian workers who are desirous of reaching with the Gespel the forty millions or more peopl in America who are outside the membership of all the churches.

The fondness of Sophle Hosan for Pastor C. T. It appears that Sophie's attachment for the distinguished preacher began on a steamer bound for Europe, upon which both were passengers. Sopble, her mother, and two sisters had been visiting in Europe and were on their way home. Pastor Russell, unwilling to rest from his tic avenue with Grant avenue and Napler labors even on the ocean voyage, went around among the passengers, spreading the gospel and making converts. Sophie was so impressed with his eloquence that she became infatuated with him, and made frequent trips to Brooklyn from her home in New Jersey to hear him preach. Shortly after midnight, last night, Offcer Regan was informed that a woman acting queerly was seen to enter the vestibule of Pastor Russell's home, and he proceeded to investigate. He found the girl crouching in a corner. She had removed her shoes and seemed loth to leave the place. She made no disturbance, President Winter Explains the Situation-Deficit, Not a Profit, on Business.

The notion that the franchise of the Bridge Operating Company, which runs the 3-cent car service over the Williamsburg Bridge, is solid gold and studded with diamonds, was dampened a bit today by Edwin W. Owing to the two companies entering on the bridge with equal rights, and the confusion which would arise from separate arrangements for the handling of the business, it was thought best by all concerned, including the Department of Bridges, to put it in this shape, and contracts between the companies and also

NEW TICKET OFFICE IN HUDSON TERMINAL STATION.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is maintaining a ticket office in the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad's Hudson Terminal Building.

The office is most conveniently located on the floor of the Concourse about the center of the Cortlandt Street side, and opposite the railroad entrances to the train floor.

It is Empletely equipped with tickets to all points on the Pennsylvania Railroad System and its connections, so that passengers may secure their tickets and make their Pullman reservations on the way to the trains. This is a great convenience to those who, from lack of time or other reason, may not be able to reach other ticket offices.

All trains of the Pennsylvania Railroad starting from Jersey City Station have connections from New York by the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad tunnels from the Hudson Terminal Station. Church and Cortlandt streets, one block from Broadway, and the connecting trains leave at five minutes after the advertised leaving time of the boats from Cortlandt Street Ferry.

> Eagle Bureau, 53 Rue Cambon.

Parls, August 8-The French are much exercised over what Paul Morton said, on his return to America, in regard to American women marrying titled foreigners, and his opinion of Americans while in Europe, doing all they can to have titled people at their table and spending money on people whom they do not even know by name. Mr. Morton's picture is seen in many of the Parisian papers, and what he said is much commented upon, and most of the sensible newspaper men think he is right. The French language does not easily lend itself to humor, but its frony has a special spice. One of the newspaper men on the Matin writes his article as if he were talking to a dowager duchess, and giving her a place of his mind. Listen, it is a lesson for the girls who are crazy to marry noblemen.

"Dear Duchess, you have a son who is over 20 years old; he has not gone through school; he does not care to study or work; he is not clever; he has no money. But he is a duke, and when you think of his future, you exclaim: 'Oh, well, he attention was paid to the Buenos Aires, will marry an American girl who has millions.' Now, I am sorry to tell you that that career henceforth will be rather a hard one; it is not I, a newspaper man, who declare it, it is Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, heard some distance from the dock, and one of the big potentates of the United at 1 o'clock a messenger appeared at States. On his return to America, he the side of the Buenos Aires and stated frankly told his compatriots that they that the trolley cars had stopped run-were fools, that he had been to a dinner ning and that no more passengers would given by an American millionaire of be allowed to get aboard and that none Paris, at which almost all the guests of those on board would be allowed to were titled men. Now the host did not know one of these guests; at his request, a friend of his had invited them, because they had titles. When the cigars, costing fifty cents apiece, were handed around, these descendants of the crusaders filled their pockets with them, saying to themselves that they might as well do so as not, for money and cigars did not count with American millionaires. Paul Mor-ton thinks that a tax ought also to be imposed on the money which American girls bring to Europe as their dower. have told you what a newspaper i be first and the first shall be the middle classes who are thought to be of importance. The American girls can run away with any penniless titled man, and sensible people here will only laugh at her, and think she is a fool for marrying the man, and that her father is one, for giving the money. Ten to one the poor girl is made miserable after marriage, by being obliged to pay bills for her husband's misdoings and to co as the Countess de Castellane did: pay the forist's bills for the flowers sent by her lord and master to his many And what compensation has she for all these sacrifices, which must he most repulsive to herself? If her husband has a father and mother, and she must see them, she cannot help who only see their own kind, who are as dull as they; and they hate the republic and republican institutions. The mother-in-law sits at some embroidery by the hour, and the father sits behind some dull papers, devoted to as they could not leave the city and were royalty. The only conversation consists cursing the republic and wishing the actual fighting was the shooting of a been held as witnesses. there were a king on the throne. "Such a young American girl, duchess or countess, may parade her title athome to her American friends when she entertains them, or show off her grand tollets at public teas to which she goes every day. She soon tires of this, however, and then she yawns her life away: for most of the time her husband is absent, having pressing engagements with other women. It must be confessed that if they like American money, they prefer French vivacity and wit, and make no bones about choosing the company of women with whom they will have the best time. American girls who have plenty of money seem to have the dullest time imaginable after they are married, for, marry whom they will heard American girls say that as soon as an American man is married be becomes dull, and the foreigners seek the society of women of their own nation. What is to be done? I think the trouble lies in the American girl's trainis allowed to ignore all the sacred duties of life. Her chief aim in life is to have a good time; she has it when she is a girl, and then, after marriage, she naturally expects the good time to continue; she ignores housekeeping, does not love her home, finds no and Mirlam Kingman. in attending to the duties of married life, refuses to have a family, and life soon palls upon her. and Hides Even Names of Those Present at Session.

Bankers in Brooklyn, as well as throughout the entire country, are very much interested in the announced programme of the Monetary Commission, convened at the Plaza Hotel in Manhattan this morning.

The reported purpose of the conference is to lay the plans for a revision of the monetary system of the United States, with the probable establishment of a central bank of the United States in Washington.

One of the early arrivals at the meeting place this morning was Senator Daniel, one of the other conferees being Repre sentative John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, the latter having left Boston yesterday to attend the meeting.

Secretary J. Sheldon, who is in the service of Senator Aldrich, refused to tell who and how many of the commission ant at Broadway and Two Hundred and were in attendance, declaring that no collisions between the Guarde Civile Forty-second street and went from there information whatever would be given out and the lower classes of the people and with her to the dance hall. There he met at the present time. Senator Daniel was several friends with whom was O'Brien. equally uncommunitative, and Senator Kirp introduced his friends to the girl, Aldrich could not be seen. The senator's son, Nelson W., was also present.

Although none of the members of the commission would talk, the general purpose of the conference is said to be to busy for so many weeks until recently. is established, stock in it will be held by all the national banks of the country that it will issue all currency secured by the paper of the branches, and that it will be limited strictly to a banking busttors to include the secretary of the treasury, the controller of the currency, the treasurer, with possible other appointees suggested by the President of the United States. The ideal capitalization, it is suggested, would be from between $200,000,00

The monetary commission was appointed from the two houses of Congress at the close of the last regular session. The meeting which was opened to-day is not expected to close until to-morrow. It is hardly thought likely that any report wil be made to the public, however.

Vehicle Was Hit by a Car at Ocean Avenue and Eastern Parkway.

Two women were painfully injured when an open car of the Ocean avenue line crashed into a horse and buggy at Rogers avenue and the Eastern parkway last night. The buggy was overturned and damaged, the occupants being spilled to the street: The women are Mrs. Lena Nowman, aged 52, of 21 Willet street, Manhattan, and Mrs. Sarah Finger, aged 32, of 111 Bristol street, Brooklyn. The women were returning from a ride to Coney Island, in Mrs. Finger's buggy, and were driving across Ocean avenue when a car bowled along. It was almost in front of the buggy before the women saw it, and they did not have time to pull aside. The motorman of the car tried to, but could not, stop the car and the impact, while not severe, was sufficient to overturn the light buggy. Dr. McGuire from the Swedish Hospital esponded to a call and took the women to the hospital suffering from cuts and They were later conveyed to

The Value of Telephone Service to the small Shop Keeper NE AND ONE-HALF million telephone calls are made in New York and vicinity each day. A very large proportion of these messages are purchasing orders, or relate to buying or selling. This fact is of vital interest to shopkeepers. It indicates that the telephone system is the great channel through which flows a large part of the City's trade. Large shopkeepers are well aware of this fact, and have installed many telephones to serve as inlets for telephone orders. In many cases, telephone trade constitutes a large proportion of their business. Small shopkeepers, too, can get telephone trade-providing they have telephones, and give prompt attention to telephone orders. Telephone buying is on the increase, and the shopkeeper without a telephone is left at the post in the race for business. Dickinson, pastor, will preach tonorrow morning on "Satan and a Woman that Talked Like a Fool Against One Sinless Man," and in the evening on "The Great White Christ; the Power of His Whiteness." Baptism after services.

The Church-in-the-House, in the upper room at the Rusurban, 105 Lefferts place, "has for its object," says the pastor, the Rev. C. L. Clist. "the bringing of the church to the people by means of houseto-house visitation and social meetings of families and neighbors in their homes, as may be desired, and without respect to creed, so that Jew or Unitarian, Romanist or Protestant, may meet without offense or fear of proselyting. Those desiring such meetings in their homes or wishing to aid in such by visitation or in music may address as above or call. As an adjunct youth and adults with good ing at 11 clock by Rev. Again there was a few hours stop, and we hit the trail before midnight. The weather and going were even better. The several igloos while delayed by open surface, except as interrupted by infrequent ridges, was as level as the glacial where the captain had been held up by fringe from Hecla to Columbia, and

This march duplicated the previous one hours it was on young ice, and occasionally the dogs were galloping.

We made twenty-five miles or more, the air, the sky and the bitter wind burning the face till it crackled. It was like the great interior ice cap of Greenland. Even the natives complained of the bitter air. It was as keen as frozen steel.

A little longer sleep than the previous ones had to be taken here, as we were all in need of it. Then on again.

Up to this time, with each successive march, our fear of an impossible lead had increased. At every inequality of found myself hurrying breath lessly forward, fearing that it marked a lead, and when I arrived at the summit would catch my breath with relief-only to find myself hurrying on in the same way at the next one.

But on this march, by some strange shift of feeling, this fear fell from me completely. The weather was thick, but it gave me no uneasiness.

Before I turned in I took an observation, which indicated our position as 89.25. A dense, lifeless pall hung overhead. The horizon was black and the ice beneath was a ghastly, chalky white with no relief-a striking contrast to the glimmering, sunlit fields of it over which we had been traveling for the previous four days,

The going was even better and there was scarcely any snow on the hard, granular, last summer's surface of the old floes, dotted with the sapphire ice of the previous summer's lakes.

A rise in temperature to 15 below retheir heads, with short, sharp barks and yelps.

PEARY IN HIS STORY CORROBORATES COOK

Both Explorers Report Practically Identical Conditions in the Polar Regions.

SIMILAR LANGUAGE.

No Land at Northern Extreme of the Earth, They Each Declare-Peary Confirms Other Details.

Peary's story of his dash to the North Pole corroborates Cook's in almost every detail! This is the exclamation heard on every hand to-day. Peary's complete story of his final dash for the muchcoveted Pole-is now before the public, and because of the unfortunate controversy that has been precipitated between Cook and Peary by the latter's flat denial that the former had preceded him to the top of the earth, everyone who has read Peary's account has taken pains to compare it with Cook's.

Both agree that no land exists at the North Pole. This is corroborative also of the theory entertained by most scientific men that the North Pole is surrounded by an open, frozen sea. Cook records that from the eighty-seventh to he eighty-eighth parallel there was an indication of land ice; but he hastened to add that there was no perceptible elevation and no positive sign of land, or of sea for that matter. But when he arrived at the Pole he writes that nothing but an endless field of purple snows met the difficulty in obtaining land situated at his gaze. "No life!" he exclaims. "No land. No spot to relieve the monotony of frost. We were the only pulsating writes to-day, "a narrow crack filled with recent ice, through which we were ablato work with a pickaxe, enabled me to make a sounding. All my wire, 1,500 no bottom." This but corroborates the impression of Cook that there was no land in the vicinity. "Signs of land were still seen everyday," wrote Cook as he neared the ninetleth parallel, "but they were deceptive illusions or a mere flight of fancy." Peary's testimony, too, that the les conditions became better as he made his way toward the Pole, tends to strengthen Cook's to the same effect. steadily improxed," wrote Cook, "but still there was a depressing monotony of scene." At the eighty-eighth parallel, Peary says that he encountered the best? going of the northward journey. ice was most equable of any I had had yet," he says. "The floes were large and old, hard and clear and were surrounded by pressure ridges, some of which were were easily negotiable, either through some crevice or up some huge brink. Cook with his lighter equipment, however, had difficulty with these pressure ridges, "Much of our hard work," he "was lost in circuitous twists around troublesome pressure lines and high, irregular fields of very old ice." A little beyond the eighty-fourth parallel Cook wrote that the last signs of solid earth were seen. Beyond that point he said there was nothing stable, and even on scaling nothing was noted to mark terrestial polar solidity. "We advanced steadily over the monotony of a moving sea of ice," he wrote. We now found ourselves - beyond the range of all life. Neither the footprints of bears nor the blow-holes of seals were detected. Ice Conditions Improved as Pola

ing desert of frost became almost unendurable in the daily routine. The surface of the pack offered less and less trouble. The weather improved, but still there remained a light life-sapping wind, which drove despair to its lowest recess. Peary's account says: "The weather

"The maddening influence of the shift-and going were even better. The surface, except as interrupted by infrequent ridges was as level as the glacial fringe from Hecla to Columbia and harder, We made twenty-five miles or more, the air, the sky and the bitter wind burning the face till it crackled." Cook also spoke specifically of this smooth expanse of ice in this parallel when he recorded that "for two days we traveled over ice which resembled a glacial surface. The usual sea ice lines of demarcation were absent and there were no hummocks or deep crevices." Cook and Peary agree in many instances is to the atmospheric conditions encountered. Both complained often of the haze and the thick mists that velled their vision. Each agrees with he other also in describing the color and character of the ice near the pole. Peary describes the ice as "ghastly, a chalky white with no relief-a striking contrast to the glimmering sunlit fields of it over which we had been traveling for the pre-

Both Men Made Records for Speed. The most striking corroboration of icle is that of the speed with which the ourney was made. It at first seemed in credible that Cook could have averaged fifteen miles a day; but Peary has gone him from five to ten better and relates that he often made from twenty to twen-desert of frost."

It is also interesting to note that the criticism which has up to this time been directed at Cook, because he had no white companion on his trip to the Pole is applicable now to Peary also. According to Peary's statements, he turned back Capwhen he was 150 miles this side of the Pole. Peary reached the Pole accompanied only; by his negro servant and two Eskimos. The advantage of the negro servant's company is considered doubtful by scientists, who seem to agree that the testimony of an Eskimo is just as good as that of an African-better, perhaps, in things appertaining to the frozen regions of the north.

STARVED TO SAVE MONEY.

Larsen Wanted to Return to Home in Norway.

Harry Larsen, 19 years old, whose only home in this country is a mudscow now lying at the foot of Thirty-first street, told the police to-day that he had to starve himself because he needed all the money he could earn to pay his expenses back to his home in Norway. Dr. Gould of the Norwegian Hospital gave Larsen ntimulants and advised him to take a little more nourishment daily or he way. N.

FRANKLIN TRADE BOARD RENEWS ASH DUMP FIGHT

Dissatisfied With Conditions, Members Seek Prohibitive Injunction-

JOHN S. HAYES IS VERY ANGRY.

Objects to Long Rows of Refuse-Laden Carts Lined Before His Door.

The Franklin Board of Trade, an organization formed for the purpose of securing the abolishment of an ash dump located on Lexington and Franklin avenues, le still vigorously waging war against that concern. Last night the executive committee met at its headquarters, 349 Franklin avenue, to develop some new plans of attack and to discuss the progress made by the visiting committee since the last meeting. The duty of the visiting committee is to obtain a sufficient number of affidavits from residents in that section in which the "dump" is operated proving that the plant has, violated the injunction granted them by Justice Crane, whereby the contractors were to operate the plant on the condition that the objectionable nulsances heretofore created from its operation, were to be obviated. After the formation of the above or ganization an injunction prohibiting the operation of the plant, unless these elements of nuisances could be averted, was secured from Justice Crane. This abatement of the nulsance modified the attitude of the property owners towards the cpcrators of the "dump" until they discovered that the company was again running the plant as it had previous to the granting of the injunction, and that day after day sparks, caused from cremating the refuse, dust, soot and nauscating odors were emitted from the premises. The board aims now not only for the abatement but for the complete abolishment of the ach dump. There are twelve or fourteen frame houses situated in close proximity to the disturbing premises and it is the contention of the Board of Trade that the sparks and fire emitted from the dump encangor their property. They also hold that the premises afford breeding grounds for tuberculosis and all sorts of germs, and claim that while the dump exists and is operated, the lives and health of the residents are in jeopardy. John S. Hayes, a prominent member, in speaking of the dump, claimed that yesterday twelve single carts filled with refuse and ashes, and three three-horse ous houses near the dump, and declared that the smell emanating from these wagons was nauscating. He also said that drivers gathered around his own door. and he found on his inspection later that the stoop rail was completely broken. In his mind this excessive line-up of carts shows that the establishment is room and not equal to its own demands, and for leader." reason alone should be abolished. METHODIST LOVE FEAST.

Sixth Avenue Church Continues Its Quarter Century Celebration.

The quarter century anniversary of the Sixth Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church which began there on Sunday, was continued last evening with the ceremony of a love feast and a special address by the pastor, the Rev. William A. Layton, D.D., in which he briefly reviewed the bistory of the church and the indivdual workers who have figured during the past twenty-five years in its activities which embraced many lines of service to God. "Thousands of people of all ages have entered our unpretentious church during those years," said the pastor. "and have become a part of Brooklyn's history, and a fact have become dominant factors in many parts of our great country and in its great enterprises." A service of song with appropriate selections of hymns of joy and testimonials by the members of the congregation and visitors concluded the love feast. The cermonles will be continued to-night and throughout the week.

She Is Said to Have Been Brutally Treated by a Police-

A mass meeting of the auxiliaries of the Label Council of the Women's Auxiliaries of Greater New York was held yesterday afternoon at the Labor Lyceum, 955 Willoughby avenue, Miss Annie C. Patterson presiding. Miss Patterson spoke of the rapid and beneficient growth of the brganization and its still greater usefulness, urging all members to use goods bearing the union label. "That all goods handled by the manufacturer and consumer," said Miss Patterson, "bearing the union label, is evidence that proper wages have been paid to the worker, and that the extension of this system means improved conditions for all workers." Other delegates, representing various trades in Brooklyn, told of the success of adherence to the union label campaign in their respective neighborhoods and lines.

With a Gorgeous Revival of "Antony and Cleopatra" Last Evening.

The New Theater opened officially last evening with a revival of "Antony and Cleopatra," of which the dress rehearsal was given on Saturday, and the audience As a Part of a Good Vaudeville was only less brilliant than that at the invitation affair. The production is the most brilliant spectacle which New York has seen for years, not excepting the lavish displays at the opera houses. The Shakspearean play lends itself to spectacular treatment, but full advantage has been taken of its opportunities. It is to be noted, however, that the display is not merely a riot of gorgeousness for its own At the Fulton Theater, yesterday, Rin- sake, but is tasteful and intelligent, forming a background for the dramatic story rather than a rival to it. The ideal of the New Theater is an

Mr. Sothern's An tony was, perhaps, the most successful single impersonation, the completeness with which he "filled the eye" in the part coming as a surprise after his boyish Romeo and his melancholy Hamlet. He had built out the head to the round outlines so often seen in leaders of men and lovers of women, and he carried the air of the bluff and passionate soldier. His big voice is fortunate for the New fheater, where the large spaces sometimes swallowed up the voices of other actors, and his reading was singularly man-crazy with love. Agnes Major has fine and forceful. Miss Marlowe's Cleopatra was a revelation. When Modjeska played the part in Brooklyn, during her last engagement here, she made Cleopatra a lady. Modjeska was born a lady standing in the aisle, with his back to and she could not altogether conceal that the stage, transmits to a woman seated quality when she put on the make-up of at a plane, and with her back to the Camille or Cleopatra. But if all the gold out of and in the mines was given to stamp out tuberculosis, it will fail to do so unless each individual insists on taking care of himself or herself. The medical authorities declare that tuberculosis, of which one in every three die, is preventable. Ignorance is its father and Carelessness its mother, and there is little excuse for either. Expensive clothing isn't necessary. The food on which tuberculosis cannot thrive is simple and costs least. The ventilation of a bedroom is a very simple matter. We sell a little window catch for 7c. that will hold a window at the right height, hold it against burglars, stop its rattle in the fiercest wind and help ventilate the bedroom just right. Buy the Red Cross Stamps—the society needs the money. The steamboat bought by the socicty last Summer with the money from sales of stamps, on which hundreds of little children in incipient stages of tuberculosis were taken on excursions, is of more importance than the Hall of Fame. But, incidentally, help spread the news about right living, clothing, food and bedroom ventilation.

Fourth street, and Martin Cannon, of Caucus of Brooklyn Democratic Aldermen Held to Decide on Programme,

The result of the last election has placed the Brooklyn Democratic organization in a unique position from a political standpoint. Brooklyn is practically supreme in the organization of the next Board of Aldermen. In the past, Brooklyn had to accept the dictates of the might not enter the Flatbush ward and Had Two Loaded Revolvers and Tammany Tiger. With the organization of the new board on the first of the year, Charles F. Murphy will have to accept the conditions imposed by Deputy Controller John H. McCooey, the new county leader in Brooklyn. It is the first time since consolidation that a leader of Tammany Hall has been ruled by the Brooklyn organization.

> Twelve aldermen were captured by the Democrats in Brooklyn at the last election. These, with the Tammany alderand the Democratic aldermen in Queens, will give the organization just enough votes to organize the new Board of Aldermen on a Democratic basis. Tammany needs the support of Brooklyn to achieve this result, and Mr. McCooey has laid down the conditions on which he McCooey to Designate Leader. During the caucus the question of selecting a leader among the Democratic Aldermen from Brooklyn also came up. It was decided that the designation of the leader would be left to Mr. Mc-Copey as the county leader. The vote on this point was unanimous by the Brooklyn delegation. It is understood that Mr. McCopey will probably select Alderman William J. Heffernan, who is also one of the district leaders in Brooklyn. Charles F. Murphy, the leader of the Tammany organization will have no alternative but to accept these conditions. Without the help of the Brooklyn aldermen he cannot organize the board. And if the board was organized on a Republican basis, the vast patronage in the city clerk's office would be lost to the Tammany organization.

City Clerk P. J. Scully, who expects to be re-elected, receives a salary of $8,000 a year. His first deputy, Joseph Prendergast, another Tammany district leader, receives $5,000 a year. John Oakley, still another leader, receives a sal-ary of $5,000. There are almost two score of minor jobs paying fat salaries which are held by members of the rank and file in the Tammany organization.
